BATTLE ROYAL Great Throng Expected To Greet Farley

Later on she may appreciate such chivalrous gestures, but the efforts of her young cousin, Count Folke Bernadotte, to place a protective arm about her when they arrived in London, moved 3-year-old Princess Margaretha of Sweden to stage a battle royal to evade him. She is the daughter of Princess Sibylla and Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden's royal family.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

By Damon Runyon

THE PRIDE of old Jack Dunstan's life, in the days when he ran the famous restaurant known as "Jack's," at Sixth avenue and Forty-third street in New York, was a set of murals on the walls of two of the four rooms that comprised his establishment.

These murals told the story of "Little Red Riding Hood," and the wicked wolf. They were in big panels on the walls of the south room of the restaurant on sixth avenue, and of the room that had an entrance around in Forty-third street.

Old Jack often escorted his customers about the premises explaining the tale depicted by the murals in detail. He apparently took it for granted that the customers were not familiar with the yarn, and maybe, in some cases, he was right. As we remember it, his version of the story was slightly vague, but none the less exciting.

Old Jack Dunstan was a stately man with white hair, and a white "moustache," or moustache, who always wore a dinner jacket in the evening, with a huge white boutonniere. He had a nervous affliction that kept his leonine head shaking slightly.

A dapper young gambler who used to hang out in "Jack's" playing practical jokes on all comers, said that the old man contracted the head shaking from saying "No." The dapper young

WOMAN CUTS WRIST IN SUICIDE EFFORT

A woman who was registered at a local hotel under the name of Miss L. Harper of Dallas attempted to commit suicide by cutting her left wrist with a razor Saturday afternoon. She was rushed to St. Francis sanitarium where she refused to give any reason for her action.

Employees at the hotel where she attempted to take her life reported that the woman called for a doctor about 3:30 o'clock. A few minutes later she asked the manager of the hotel to go to her room. The manager found her lying in bed which was soaked with blood. Four empty whiskey bottles were found in her room. The manager said she had left the hotel since she registered there Friday.

TWO SCHOOLS TO HOLD EXERCISES

Baccalaureate Sermons Planned Today For O. P. H. S. And Neville High

The baccalaureate exercises for two high schools of Monroe will be held today with appropriate services. The first will be that of the Neville High school, which will be conducted at Grace Episcopal church at 11 a.m. The other baccalaureate exercise will be that at the auditorium of the Ouachita Parish High school when the high school will have its annual service at 3 p.m.

A special program has been arranged for the service at Grace church. There will be special music by the choir, directed by Roger C. Frisbie, organist. The pastor, Rev. E. F. Hayward, will preach the sermon. The members of the senior class will attend in a body.

The Ouachita Parish High school baccalaureate exercises will be opened with the processional, "Priests from Athalia," by the parish high school band. This will be followed by a song, "My Soul Be on Thy Guard," by the congregation. There will be a prayer and anthem, scripture reading and music by a double quartet composed of Edith Beeson, Reba Harkins, Dorothy Burge, Melba Busby, Merida Johnson, Billy Stanford, J. M. Johnson, Jr., and George Vaughn.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. W. C. Scott, pastor of the First Methodist church.

A song, "Now the Day Is Over," will be followed by the benediction. The central part of the auditorium will be occupied by the members of the graduating class of nearly 270.

I WANT TO SEE THE EDITOR

The lovely snow is coming down On you and me and all around; It falls on both palace and hovel, And we all have to get out and shovel.

I HAVE never forgotten that verse, nor the occasion on which I heard it. It was read to me from a roll of manuscript, which, I swear, was tied up with ribbon, by a young girl, whose mother accompanied her to my office in the role of manager. The visit, unannounced and uninvited, was for the purpose of obtaining publication of the verse and its many following stanzas in the small-town daily

MUDDY WATER OF HONDO FIVE FEET DEEP IN SOME OF ROSWELL STREETS

No Deaths Reported But Highway And Rail Travel All Cut Off

$100,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY SEVERE RAIN STORM

Crop And Livestock Losses In Pecos Valley Heavy And Widespread

ROSWELL, N. M., May 29.—(P)—Muddy waters, sweeping down the usually dry Hondo river bed, inundated this Pecos valley city of approximately 13,000 tonight after the heaviest storm in 33 years.

Water ran from two to five feet deep through the streets all day, causing damage estimated at more than $100,000, and cutting off all highway and rail travel. No deaths were reported.

The waters, which rushed down from the Capitan and White mountains to the west, flooded floors of many business establishments and homes with no sign of immediate let up.

City authorities fought to keep the water supply from contamination and public utilities, while maintained, were crippled. Communication lines were clogged.

Reports from Riverside camp, 20 miles above the city, said the crest of the Hondo had passed.

In the meantime, a light rain continued to fall here and precipitation was widespread over the state.

The storm, which swept in from the Gulf of Mexico two days ago, precipitating floods in many parts of the state has taken a toll of six dead. Crop and livestock damage in the

WOMAN RELEASED AFTER SHOOTING

Investigators At New Orleans Find She Acted In Self-Defense

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(P)—Vera Webber, 27-year-old divorcee, went home today to "try to forget it all" after the district attorney's office ordered her released from custody on the ground she had shot her former sweetheart, Sterling Knight, 20, in self-defense.

Physicians said that Knight will recover from bullet wounds inflicted yesterday in the left side and right arm.

The shooting occurred at Knight's home. His 16-year-old sister, Elizabeth, was wounded by a stray bullet in the right arm.

Assistant District Attorney Rudolph Becker, Jr., said after an investigation that Miss Webber had been released because "this is purely a case of self-defense."

"The woman says that she is in a delicate condition," declared Becker, "and that when she went to Knight's home Friday to discuss her condition with him, he not only refused to talk to her, but rushed at her and attempted to take from her a gun which he knew she had."

"This brought on the shooting in which Knight's sister was accidentally shot," Miss Webber says that as she followed Knight upstairs after the shooting he grabbed a chair and struck her on the head.

"Prior to the shooting I understand that Knight told the woman he would do nothing for her and that the best thing she could do would be to buy some poison and take it. She and Knight had had several arguments and he struck her on several occasions, even on the day before the shooting."

"It is a case of self-defense and as far as we are concerned the case is closed."

Detective Captain William Bell said Miss Webber, a former public school physical education instructor, told him she had bought a .32 caliber pistol yesterday for $5 before the shooting.

Police declared she is the mother of a 10-year-old son, and that she was divorced two years ago.

Her mother said, "Vera has been in a highly nervous condition for several weeks. Now she is going home and try to forget about it all."

Miss Webber told police she was an expectant mother.

GERMAN WARSHIP FIRED BY BOMBS

Blaze Breaks Out After Shells From Spanish Planes Strike

VALENCIA, Spain, May 29.—(P)—The Spanish government announced tonight two of its war planes had dropped four bombs on the German "pocket battleship" Admiral Scheer at Ibiza in the Balearic islands tonight after the cruiser opened fire.

The exploding bombs set fire to the warship.

"On passing over Ibiza," the ministry of defense said, "the warship anchored 200 yards off the breakwater, and in heavy anti-aircraft artillery fire against the planes which committed no act of aggression against either the ship or the city."

"The airplanes responded to the attack by dropping bombs, four of which struck the ship, causing explosions."

Radio messages received here said fire broke out on the warship after the bombs struck.

The Admiral Scheer is one of the German vessels participating in the non-intervention control patrol to prevent the export of war materials.

Mouton And Wearin Will Try Bellows

By Eddy Gilmore
WASHINGTON, May 29.—(P)—Representatives Otha D. Wearin, Democrat, Iowa, and Bob Mouton, Democrat, Louisiana, tuned up today for a tonsil tussle on the capitol steps to decide which is more fetching—the Iowa hog call or the Louisiana bayou holler.

The proposed contest grew out of Wearin's deprecation of the southern dawn-shout, and Mouton's stout defense that it is "the great American holler."

"I'm not anywhere near the best hog-caller in Iowa," explained Wearin, "but I think I can manage a couple of whoops that will get my point across."

Mouton replied he isn't a stand-out dawn-shouter either, but added that, if pressed, he's capable of great vocal volume.

The date of the contest—which, of course, is all in fun—will be decided

Entire Citizenship Of Northeast Louisiana Invited To Be Present

ELABORATE PREPARATIONS MADE TO WELCOME LEADER

Monroe Area Given Improved Postal Service Under His Administration

One of the largest crowds ever assembled in a public gathering in Monroe is expected to greet Postmaster-General James A. Farley when he arrives in this city at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to make a brief address from the steps of the federal building on Jackson street.

President Roosevelt's closest adviser and closest cabinet officer will remain in Monroe about 15 minutes, it was announced by Postmaster James R. Wooten, who is making arrangements for his reception.

"Owing to the shortness of his visit," Mr. Wooten said, "there will be no speech-making except that of the postmaster-general. He will be given all the time available so he can extend the message that he desires to give on behalf of the president and himself."

The streets immediately adjacent to the post-office will be roped off from traffic, so that the crowd may have an uninterrupted opportunity to see and hear the distinguished visitor.

Invitations have been extended to the entire citizenship of northeast Louisiana to be present.

"There will be no distinction," the Monroe postmaster said, "between high and low, rich or poor, officials or non-officials. Labor and capital are invited to rub elbows together to give greeting and tribute to one of the most notable figures in American life today. The postmaster general is distinctly one of the people and he wants to meet as many of the people as he can on his arrival in Monroe."

Mr. Wooten voiced the appreciation the people of this city and parish feel

Assistant District Attorney Rudolph Becker, Jr., said after an investigation that Miss Webber had been released because "this is purely a case of self-defense."

"The woman says that she is in a delicate condition," declared Becker, "and that when she went to Knight's home Friday to discuss her condition with him, he not only refused to talk to her, but rushed at her and attempted to take from her a gun which he knew she had."

"This brought on the shooting in which Knight's sister was accidentally shot," Miss Webber says that as she followed Knight upstairs after the shooting he grabbed a chair and struck her on the head.

"Prior to the shooting I understand that Knight told the woman he would do nothing for her and that the best thing she could do would be to buy some poison and take it. She and Knight had had several arguments and he struck her on several occasions, even on the day before the shooting."

"It is a case of self-defense and as far as we are concerned the case is closed."

Detective Captain William Bell said Miss Webber, a former public school physical education instructor, told him she had bought a .32 caliber pistol yesterday for $5 before the shooting.

Police declared she is the mother of a 10-year-old son, and that she was divorced two years ago.

Her mother said, "Vera has been in a highly nervous condition for several weeks. Now she is going home and try to forget about it all."

Miss Webber told police she was an expectant mother.

WOMAN RELEASED AFTER SHOOTING

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(P)—Vera Webber, 27-year-old divorcee, went home today to "try to forget it all" after the district attorney's office ordered her released from custody on the ground she had shot her former sweetheart, Sterling Knight, 20, in self-defense.

Physicians said that Knight will recover from bullet wounds inflicted yesterday in the left side and right arm.

The shooting occurred at Knight's home. His 16-year-old sister, Elizabeth, was wounded by a stray bullet in the right arm.

A Statement to the Public

THE MONROE COMMERCIAL SCHOOL has been in Monroe for the past 14 years and under its present management for 8 years. It has endeavored to conduct an honest and conservative school not indulging in extravagant claims and rash promises.

The past 10 years, with scarcely any exception, no fully accredited student of this school, having completed the short-hand and accounting courses, has ever failed to get a position. This is the result of our policy of operating a small school, thus permitting us to quickly adjust ourselves to the employment conditions of this city.

It is estimated that Monroe has perhaps 300 stenographers. Possibly, there are 75 to 90 changes in these places each year. For this reason we would prefer to have a school of 75 rather than 750 students because our opportunities for service in Monroe are much greater.

We have connections in New Orleans to place students, but even this city has its employment problems.

We believe we have the most reasonable tuition rates in the south, and a generous weekly payment plan that will appeal to everyone. Just think! Only one down payment of $3 will start you on your business career, and then only $3 weekly thereafter.

We are not promoters, nor dreamers, nor magicians. We can't pull rabbits out of an empty hat, but we can give your boy or girl a good, clean, honest, practical business course if they have the capacity to learn and will cooperate with the school. We are the old established school. Our recommendations are not from Schools cannot make positions, nor can they guarantee positions to prospective students. During the past several years the United States Government with its unlimited resources could not do it. No school is greater than the government.

The great Soule Business College, of New Orleans, makes this statement on page 29 of their catalog, which we quote, "When we are asked our policy in regard to guaranteeing positions, we plainly state that it is a dishonest proposition, and that any school which undertakes to guarantee situations needs the student's money more than the student needs the instruction that such a school can give." We believe that this covers the case, although our students have been very successful in getting jobs, having gone into many lines of employment—law, medicine, engineering, business, and government—both state and national—from Texas to Washington, D. C.

strangers but from the men that you know. These are the students that you know. If you attend our school you will have this clientele to support you. We have just repainted and redecorated our school, making it one of the coziest and most home like institutions in the south.

V. BREARD, M.C. It is well and favorably known. In fact, we have employed several of their products and found them satisfactory. My present secretary is from their school and I believe she is one of the best. We are satisfied that if they can turn them out that way they are really good.

Dear Friend and Student:

Have you decided to take a business course this summer and fall? Then investigate our institution.

YOU WILL FIND—

1. That we have been established in Monroe for many years. That we are large enough to be a real school and small enough to give every student individual instruction.
2. That ours is a professional institution, employing professional teachers, and rendering professional service. That we specialize in commercial subjects only. The student is required to take only business studies. Therefore, his entrance into the commercial world is not delayed by unnecessary academic subjects. He works in a business atmosphere under conditions similar to those in the industrial world. If he can complete a course in one half the time usually required by the average student, we are glad to have him do so. It is easy to understand why the SPECIALIST succeeds.

3. That our students have gone into many types of office—Law, Medicine, Engineering, Business, and Government—both State and National—in a line of employment extending from Texas to Washington, D. C., and Pennsylvania.

Yours sincerely,

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE OLD FOOTBALL FAN—John M. Zook was an ardent athlete fan from early youth, but never more so than in the latter years of his long, useful life. Even at the age of 90 he was actively interested in the affairs of the University of Pennsylvania, though he was not an alumnus of that institution. However, he did attend school there at the advanced age of 77—took regular courses and thoroughly enjoyed modern college life just so he could qualify for tickets to the U. of P. games.

108,000 MILES ON A BIKE—Twenty-eight years ago, C. G. Williams of Colorado Springs, Colo., lost both legs in a railroad accident. His new wooden legs just didn't seem to work and he found it difficult to walk on them. Riding a bicycle was easy though and got him around with comparative ease and comfort. For 20 years Mr. Williams has been a bill collector for a local firm and in carrying on his work has ridden an average of 18 miles every work day—390 days of every year—a total distance equal to more than four trips around the world.

COUNTRY CLUB CADDY DROWNS

Negro Youth Was Wading After Toy Balloon In Ouachita River

Matthews Little, 12-year-old negro caddy at the country club, drowned in the Ouachita river Saturday morning shortly before noon. The body was recovered less than an hour later by members of the Monroe fire department who went to the scene in the American Legion emergency truck.

The negro youth had been playing with several other boys on the bank of the river just north of the country club and was wading in an effort to grab a toy rubber balloon which was floating on the water. He waded out about 50 feet from the bank and disappeared in the water.

Captain J. W. Blanks of the Monroe fire department found the body shortly after rescue operations had started. The boy was administered first aid treatment but failed to respond, the body having been submerged for about 40 minutes, it was reported.

Memorial Day Recalls War's Grim Cost

It is hard to realize, at this late date, that we are paying for the war of 1861-65.

The bills for powder, shot and general breakage have long since been settled. Pensions are being paid, of course, but they don't loom large any more—and the war is so far away from us, anyhow, that they seem to be part of the natural order of things, unconnected with actual conflict.

Indeed, the whole war is rapidly passing into romanticized veil of sentiment. The very names of the battles—Shiloh, Antietam, Cold Harbor, Bull's Run, and all the rest—have a quaint, old-fashioned sound. We tend to think of them as scenes in a picturesque and exciting pageant, and forget that they were paid for in blood, heartache and agony.

But this continuing cost of that war escapes us most of all. What is it, anyway—this cost that we are still paying and must always go on paying?

Figure it this way. Close to 500,000 men lost their lives in that war whose memory this day was set aside to celebrate. Most of them were young men; they were, furthermore, the finest men—the bravest, the most ardent, the lads who were most eager to pour out what they had as a sacrifice for an ideal.

You do not have to think very long to understand that we are immeasurably poorer today for the loss of those half-million fine youths.

What could they not have given us, if they had grown up to useful manhood and taken their places in the world, untouched by war?

Half a million more men, the pick of the nation's youth, from whom to draw scientists, poets, civic leaders, inventors, statesmen, writers, counsellors and business men! By the mere law of averages, there must have been, among those half million, many who would have gone far and rendered great services. It is hardly exaggerating to say that the last half century of our history might have been profoundly different if those men had been spared to us; it certainly is not exaggerating at all to say that we would be better, wiser, richer people today if those men had not been killed.

There is the true cost of war—of the war of 1861 and of all the other wars whose dead we remember today. Not the money—for that can be repaid. Not the grief and agony—for time can heal that wound. But the irretrievable removal of human spirits that could have helped make a fairer world—this is the price that can never be avoided and can never be wholly paid.

To the end of our existence as a nation we shall suffer from that loss. What better day to meditate on that loss than Memorial day?

A RULE OF WAR

The Italian government is going to adopt a new policy in naval construction, according to word from Rome.

Heretofore, Italian warships have been designed with speed and armament chiefly in mind. Cruising range has been considered unimportant, because it has been expected that Italian ships would always operate in the Mediterranean, close to their home bases.

Now, however, it is announced that the Italian navy is to be made "ocean-going," with long cruising capacity so that it can operate in the Atlantic, if need be, far from Italian shores.

This looks as if the Italian navy were to become an offensive weapon pure and simple. But the truth of the matter is that all armaments are inherently offensive, for the simple reason that a nation waging even a purely defensive war must take the offensive at times—as the Confederate states of America did when Lee invaded Pennsylvania. The shift in emphasis in Italian warship design merely recognizes that fundamental strategic fact.

NAZIS NEED GOOD-WILL

The German government would be well-advised if it paid some attention to a warning voiced the other day by Professor Friedrich Schoenemann of the University of Berlin, who feels that the state-controlled press is entirely too free with its blanket criticisms of America.

Recalling that the German press goes into a lather of abuse whenever an American says something derogatory to the Nazi government, Professor Schoenemann remarked:

"I think it is rather foolish and dangerous to indulge in wholesale criticism and denunciation of American civilization as a whole. We underestimated America once and lost both the World war and the peace that followed as a result."

Certainly the German press lately has done little to create good-will toward Germany in America. And good-will abroad happens to be rather important to the German people these days.

Bill before the Tennessee legislature prescribes the length and thickness of sliced bacon. Sounds like another attempt to hog the limelight with a lot of monkey business.

I Passed a Little House Today

By Helen Welshimer

I PASSED a little house today.
The one whose gate was blue;
I thought of how its cobbled walk
Once made a path for you.

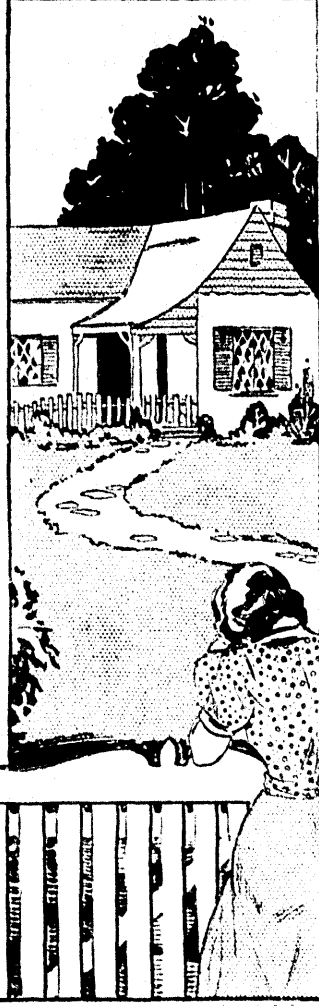

AND how you'd raise the copper latch
And step across the brook;
And hearing you, I'd put away
My baking or my book.

AND sitting by the fire we'd gaze
Down half a crooked hill
To where the city swung below,
So shining and so still.

AND how we never wished to leave
The peace that we had found,
Though spring brought gipsy violins
That strewed their songs around.

OH do you know another house
The whole creation over,
With seven crickets on the hearth
And beds of purple clover?

AND then I hurried very fast,
So people wouldn't know
It made me cry to watch the house
Because I miss you so.

ROCKEFELLER'S VIRTUES

By BRUCE CATTON

The queer contradiction in the life of John D. Rockefeller will probably be giving social historians some bad moments for many generations.

If you like to have life wrap up its rights and wrongs in separate packages and hand them out neatly labeled, so that a clear-cut judgment can be pronounced on each act and each life, Mr. Rockefeller's case will be highly unsatisfactory to you.

He got his wealth in a way that cannot be praised too emphatically. How is a historian going to strike a balance there?

Until the early 1900's, there is very little in the Rockefeller story that can incline a socially-minded historian to do anything but shake his head sadly.

The story of the formation and development of Standard Oil has been told many times. Enough has been printed to reveal it as a jungle battle, in which applied acquisitiveness followed its chosen path with utter ruthlessness.

In an age when monopoly was riding as a storm cloud on the American horizon, Rockefeller was the king of monopolists. He was hated by the mass of the people as few men have been hated; and the hatred was all the more bitter because it was tinged with deep fear.

We do not often realize, at this late date, how greatly the common folk of America were stirred by the giant corporations in the closing years of the last century. Tremendous pressures were set up by the emergence of our industrial giants; people felt that their prized liberties were coming to be at the mercy of the sort of people recently dubbed "economic royalists," and with some justice they looked on Rockefeller as the man who had shown these royalists how to seize power.

But that is only half of the picture. For if this man made people uneasy by showing them that one man can amass more wealth and power than one man can possibly need, he also showed them that great wealth properly used can have enormous social value.

The amount of good that the Rockefeller money has done is simply beyond appraisal. The whole world has felt the effects. The best that science can do, supported by all that money can provide, has been put at the service of all mankind. The man who made that possible deserves, surely, some sort of gratitude from the race.

So how are you going to strike a balance on that man's career? Its two halves do not jibe. You can't label him with one word or one phrase. Like all the rest of us, he was a mixture of good and bad—but on a titanic scale. We can say, perhaps, that his case reverses the Shakespearean adage—that the good he did lives after him, while the evil looks smaller and smaller with the years.

A BOOK REVIEW

CONFEDERATE SOLDIER AS HE REALLY WAS

The gracious living of the old southern plantation, with its courtly gentlemen, high-spirited ladies and white-porcelained mansions, was not the whole story of the southern Confederacy—romantic writers to the contrary notwithstanding.

First and last, the Confederacy was kept alive by a set of ragged, unwashed and extremely hard-boiled men who were not courtly or gracious at all but who were just about the toughest fighting men this continent ever produced. These men, the embattled soldiers of Lee's army, who are usually prettified beyond recognition by novelists of the lost cause, get their dues at last in Clifford Downey's novel, "Bugles Blow No More."

Mr. Downey writes of Richmond in the war years, and of the way its high hope and gay assurance slowly changed to stolid endurance, then to gnawing doubt and finally to bleak despair. And while his story is mainly concerned with civilian life, those hard, profane soldiers of Lee's army are never out of sight for one chapter.

By presenting the Confederate soldier indirectly, as it were, Mr. Downey achieves a fine portrait. He paints him, not as a romantic candidate for stage or film, but as a rough, tough killer who endured fabulous things and fought like the seven devils, and went on enduring and fighting long after his cause was obviously doomed.

He kept on, Mr. Downey suggests, not from any devotion to a cause, or even from attachment to a leader, but simply because he was one of those born fighters who will keep trading punches as long as they have strength enough to lift their fists.

"Bugles Blow No More" is a good book. It is a welcome antidote to the sword-and-rose school of that period's war literature.

A TIME FOR REDEDICATION

THE IDEAL OF LASTING PEACE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

Minor reflections:

Ted Woodyard, who publishes more country newspapers than anyone else in America, has a lot of fun with his job. His associates want him to slide his feet under a lampshade in a Radio City office building, but he prefers to loaf with the livery stable and drug store gang in the towns where he has weeklies. He doesn't want to lose touch with the folk upon whose viewpoint his circulation depends. Wise fellow!

Back in my town there is enthusiasm for a new barber shop quartette. In waiting me, a local gurgler. "Best darned quartette you ever heard—these five of them!"

Now and then out of the envelopes falls some cheering word that chirks up a writer and tingles a little glow. Today from Seattle, an old and respected newspaper veteran writes:

"Continue the same rule of making little noise and doing much good by making thousands thoughtful and happy."

Tony Wons writes me that he has given up the radio for good. He has a vacation camp in Wisconsin that has proven quite popular as a fishing resort and he is dividing his time between philosophy and making violins in a little shack in the rear of his home. Tony had many friends on the air waves who have missed him but will be glad to know that he is living a quiet life filled with content.

Several permanent residents in France have written in discouraging reports about Premier Blum's Utopian 40-hour week plans. Summed up, it gives the French people one third of their time for work, one third for play and one third for repose. The trouble is it gives them too much time and nowhere to go. Both Saturday and Sunday have become dull days for some choose Saturday to close shops and others choose Monday. The day has become optional to the people.

And—It strikes many that the most neglected branch of instruction in American public schools is penmanship. I know a very bright young man, nearing 16, who still writes the childish block letters of his kindergarten days. Good penmanship is to my notion far more important than Latin and geometry. There are few good penmen among youth. That is not true in England, France and many European countries.

One of the most poignant editorials I ever read was recently penned by Frederick Sullens, editor of the Jackson, Miss., News. He wrote:

Mrs. Anne L. Sullens, wife of this writer, passed into the Great Beyond at daylight this morning. One cannot write when eyes are blinded by fast falling tears and the brain is numbed by life's greatest sorrow.

God never brought into being a truer, sweeter, nobler or higher type of womanhood than this wife of my brother, or one who had more trusting faith in God. It is hard to say "Thy will be done." I cannot say it now.

Good friends, dear friends, true friends, all ye whom I have tried to console with written words when you were crushed with similar sorrow and there seemed naught but darkness, pray for me. I now know the meaning of Gethsemane.

I always like the tact Henry Sell expresses in meeting a New York wife or husband he has not seen for some time. For many years his inquiry of one about the other would bring an embarrassed and haughty: "I'm sure I don't know." And Sell would learn they had long since been divorced. So now his greeting is "How are the folks?"

Among the postal measures introduced in Congress are a resolution authorizing a two-cent stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of the naturalization of General Kosciuszko, and another calling for a stamp honoring the late Senator Thomas E. Watson, sponsor of the rural free delivery service.

For first day cover cancellations, send not more than 10 self-addressed envelopes to the postmasters at Annapolis and West Point, with money orders for the total postage necessary, at five cents a cover.

A special souvenir sheet of U. S. stamps will be issued in connection with the convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans at Asheville, N. C., Aug. 26 to 28. The denomination and subject matter of the sheet will be announced later.

The "League of the Thousand," young Frenchmen under 18 who fought and died in the World War, may have a stamp issued soon in its honor.

Both stamps are blue and equal in size to the lower values of the same series. The army stamp illustrates the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, while the navy stamp bears the seal of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, flanked by midshipmen of early and present days.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

With the discovery of insulin, we have not discovered a cure for diabetes. Insulin merely substitutes for the material that the incapacitated pancreas fails to supply. This material from the pancreas is the important substance necessary for the suitable utilization of sugar by the human body.

Sugar is absolutely necessary as fuel used by the body in its activities. When the heart beats, sugar is used up. When the muscles act, they use up sugar.

The blood of every living person contains from 80 to 120 milligrams of sugar for each 100 cubic centimeter. The blood of a person with diabetes contains much more sugar, simply because his body is not using sugar as it should.

Because of the increase in the amount of sugar in the blood, the diabetic usually is thirsty and hungry. With this thirst and hunger, however, he is usually underweight, because he fails to get the benefit of the food that he eats.

In the normal person, the sugar taken into the body is stored in the liver, muscles and skin, or burned by the body in order to provide warmth and energy. In diabetes, this sugar is eliminated from the body in the urine.

In 1674, an English physician named Willis found that the urine in diabetes is sweeter than that of normal persons. One hundred years later another doctor found that the sweetness was due to sugar. The diabetic is weak because he is unable to use sugar for energy.

Diabetes is not as menacing a disease as any of the infectious. It is not contagious. It is not associated with chronic fever, unless there is a secondary infection. The patient who learns the rules of treatment and follows them can keep his diabetes under control and live almost as long as any normal person.

Some diabetics who are exceedingly careful will live longer than normal persons who are not as careful. Two-thirds of the cases of diabetes begin after the age of 40. It is not a disease of the very young. If one happens to come from a family in which there is a tendency to diabetes, he must, of course, be a little more careful than those whose family records are without any trace of this disease.

The fact that Republican and Democratic conservative senators are backing Robinson is also partly due to a belief that he is more conservative than other persons Roosevelt has considered, and to a belief that the senate is entitled to more recognition. Every one seems to be quite sure that the social reforms of the Roosevelt administration are well guided his judgment on the bench. No more does one hear it seriously asserted that justices interpret the constitution as a rigid, inflexible formula. That myth, perhaps at some time when no one was looking, seems to have fallen out the window.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON.—Resignation of Justice Van Devanter has given Roosevelt perhaps the meanest political problem he ever had to worry about. There are several ways of looking at the probability that the president will appoint Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, to the supreme court, and in each of them you can detect more than a trace of absurdity.

The situation will become even more farcical if it turns out that this is the only seat on the supreme bench which Roosevelt will have to fill for a long time to come. If the net result of four months of historic hubbub were to be the appointment of Joe Robinson, 1937 might well appear in history as the year of the big horse laugh.

Heavy pressure from the senate is the major factor inspiring belief that Robinson will be named to succeed Van Devanter. Roosevelt was considering the appointment, however, even before that developed. Rumors that F. R. D. promised the next justiceship to Joe have been rife for years, but no one can pin down any man who will say that either Roosevelt or Robinson ever confirmed those rumors. Reports that liberals close to the president are urging him not to appoint Joe, who desires the post, may be discounted. They seem to be resigned to it.

Robinson will be 65 years old in August and it will look like silly business if he is appointed by a president who has called for young blood in the court, and who is still demanding a law whose original purpose was to push justices over 70 off the court.

The new retirement act for justices says they not only must be over 70, but must also have served 10 years before they can retire on $20,000 a year, which means that Robinson would hardly be likely to quit until he was 75. A few months ago the president told newspapermen that he had made it a rule not to appoint men over 60 to the bench. His friends are saying now that he was thinking about district judgeships, but the act remains that at the time some of his closest intimates were spreading the word that he meant to make Robinson would never be on the supreme court.

It will also verge on the cockeyed if the liberal Roosevelt, who has called on all liberals to help him liberalize the supreme court, now appoints a lifelong politician who has held office since the age of 23, and has generally been regarded as a conservative.

Free To Kick Up Heels

Perhaps that would be a more peculiar, however, than the position of the big senate bloc of Republicans and Democrats which has been howling against political interference with the judiciary. That bloc is now howling for appointment of Joe to that sacred bench on the ground that Joe deserves it because he always has loyally supported the president as senate majority leader, orating and cracking the whip for measures to which he was personally and fundamentally opposed. Even a greens that partisan loyalty has seldom gone to such limits, and yet those supporting Robinson most strongly have been loudest in charging that Roosevelt sought to appoint several of his own rubber stamps to the supreme court. Certainly no man has a more consistent record than Joe.

The idea seems to be that if Joe is released from bondage and turned into pasture, as he well deserves, he will be free to kick up his heels and vote according to his own beliefs.

The thing you most conspicuously don't hear is a large demand for the man best qualified for the job. There would be such a demand if it were not for senatorial courtesy.

It's An Old Custom

A further ludicrous sidelight on the erstwhile issues of keeping the court out of politics comes if you suggest to any pro-Joe senator that the fact that a man is a popular partisan politician per se shouldn't be the primary reason for making him a justice. Then you receive the prompt reply that it's an old custom—that Chief Justice Hughes left the bench to run for president and was put back on the bench largely as a reward for powerful aid to Hoover in the 1928 campaign; that Justice Van Devanter was Republican national committeeman in Montana; that Justice Sutherland was a popular party politician; and that Robinson was appointed to the court by his good friend Harding.

The fact that Republican and Democratic conservative senators are backing Robinson is also partly due to a belief that he is more conservative than other persons Roosevelt has considered, and to a belief that the senate is entitled to more recognition. Every one seems to be quite sure that the social reforms of the Roosevelt administration are well guided his judgment on the bench. No more does one hear it seriously asserted that justices interpret the constitution as a rigid, inflexible formula. That myth, perhaps at some time when no one was looking, seems to have fallen out the window.

OFFICERS NAMED BY RICE MILLERS

B. C. Delahoussaye Of Kaplan Will Head Organization; Galveston Chosen

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(AP)—The Rice Millers' association adjourned its 38th annual convention today after electing officers and selecting Galveston, Tex., as the 1938 convention city.

New officers are B. C. Delahoussaye, of Kaplan, president and E. V. Schaefer, of New Orleans, vice-president. Mr. Delahoussaye succeeds V. C. Clark of Beaumont, Tex. W. M. Reid was elected executive secretary. John R. Nuber, manager of the Puerto Rico office, and F. W. Ferrer, manager of the Lake Charles office, were re-appointed.

In his address, retiring President Clark told the association that the executive secretary estimated this year's supply of rice would exceed the supply of the year before by 2,000,000 bushels, "but due to educational, publicity and advertising activities and also to the fact that competing commodities were lower in price than we could expect a higher domestic consumption."

"It is apparent," Mr. Clark said, "that the growing crop shows an increase in acreage over the last, which naturally would tend toward larger production. It is probably that the domestic and territorial consumption will be exceeded by supply, in which case we would be forced to look for foreign outlets."

One foreign outlet may eventually be Cuba, according to Mr. Reid, who reported the activities of a special committee that was sent by the association to Cuba last December to study methods of expanding the Cuban market. "The campaign will be continued, and we are hopeful of eventual success," Reid said.

Mr. Reid reported that the financial condition of the association was "highly satisfactory" and recommended continuation of a rice research fellowship at Louisiana State university.

Mr. Nuber, making his annual report for the Puerto Rican office, told the association that Puerto Rico is an outlet for 2,200,000 bushels of rice annually. A higher consumption is expected this year, he said.

Some 498 aviators were killed in the American Expeditionary Forces in France. Of these, 234 were deaths in battle and 264 deaths by accidents.

GERMAN PILGRIMS BLESSED BY POPE

Pius Vigorous In Utterance Two Days Before Eightieth Birthday

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, May 29.—(AP)—Venerable Pope Pius XI, with his 80th birthday only two days off, in a vigorous utterance today sent special blessings to German Catholics to fortify them against a fierce new Nazi attack.

The Holy Father said "very grave events are happening" in Germany—where last night the Nazi regime's movement against the Catholic church reached new heights of bitterness in a speech of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

While preparations for the celebration Monday of the pope's 80th birthday went on at his summer home here he addressed a group of pilgrims, including some from Germany, who brought greetings on his completion of four score years. He said:

"The Holy Father, feeling himself near to all his German sons, blesses with all his heart and affection not only those present here, but all others who are united by the same feeling of faith and devotion to their religion."

"We are pleased to see that you came from a part of the great Christian family where very grave events are happening and where there is so much need for insisting on Christian social life for the individual and for the family."

Pope Pius, who has reached a greater age than most of his predecessors and has had one of the longest reigns in the recent history of the papacy—15 years—after a month at Castel Gandolfo appears in improved health, is sunburned and shows vigor in his step.

The pope will preside over a wide variety of ceremonies in celebration of his birthday. Chief among them will be the inauguration of the new pontifical academy he created last year, and the closing of the international exposition of the Catholic press.

GERMAN CATHOLICS TOLD TO STAND FIRM

BERLIN, May 29.—(AP)—Germany's ranking Catholic prelate, in the face of Nazi threats of a more drastic campaign against the church, today exhorted all German Catholics to stand firm in the faith.

Count Konrad von Preysing, bishop of Berlin, issued an appeal to all of his religion to prepare for devotions to celebrate St. Boniface's day Sunday, June 6.

The bishop, however, made no direct mention of the threats of widespread expulsions and other drastic action against the church made last night by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in a denunciatory speech broadcast to the German nation.

Other Catholic leaders likewise received the storm of Goebbels' denunciations in silence. However, in both Catholic and Nazi camps there was keen scrutiny of the propaganda minister's fiery phrases in search of clues to the government's next step in its movement against the Catholic church.

The controlled Nazi press last night echoed and expanded on the main points of the Goebbels speech, which, originally billed as a reply to anti-Nazi remarks of George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, became an attack on the whole church.

Goebbels' own organ, Der Angriff, declared "the conflict has passed the stage of diplomatic negotiations. The whole nation, in the sphere of Christianity, insists on a full and public answer." Thus it called on the church to reply to the propaganda minister's charges of "moral decadence" in its clergy and in its institutions.

Other Nazi newspapers, especially those published in parts of the Reich where the Catholic church is strongest, lauded what was described as Goebbels' "air-clearing thunderstorm." One paper emphasized the impression Goebbels' "last warning to the hierarchy" has made on parents.

Goebbels charged widespread immorality in Catholic schools. The right of the church to educate Catholic youth has been a vital point in the church-state conflict.

ANTI-RABIES LAW TO BE REQUESTED

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(AP)—Dr. Joseph A. O'Hara, president of the state board of health, announced today that the next legislature will be asked to enact a law requiring anti-rabies inoculation of all dogs.

Mayor Robert S. Maestri said that an ordinance providing for inoculation of stray dogs picked up by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and similar service at small fees to animals with owners will be introduced Monday in the city council.

Dr. O'Hara said he was studying provisions of an Alabama statute concerning inoculation of dogs and that the proposed Louisiana law may be patterned after it. Statewide inoculation of all dogs older than three months, once each year, may be called for.

The Alabama law also provides for annual licenses, impounding of strays, humane destruction of unclaimed animals and establishment of quarantine in cases of suspected rabies.

"Records show that some 200 persons have received the pasteur treatment at charity hospital here since January 1," Dr. O'Hara declared. "Update, both human beings and live stock have been bitten."

AID FOR POTATO FARMERS SOUGHT

Prices Drop From $3.50 To 75 Cents Per Hundred Pounds

BATON ROUGE, La., 29.—(AP)—Harry F. Kapp, secretary of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation, said today that Governor Richard Leche had requested President Roosevelt to aid Louisiana Irish potato farmers.

Market prices for Irish potatoes have dropped from $3.50 per hundred pounds on May 10 to 75 cents per 100 pounds currently, Kapp said. Nearly 1,000 carloads of potatoes are loaded in Louisiana ready for market sale, he said, but at a price that is without any profit to the farmer.

Upon suggestion of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation, the secretary-treasurer said, both Leche and Lieutenant-Governor Long sent telegrams to Senator Allen Ellender of Louisiana at Washington to assemble the Louisiana congressional delegation in a mass appeal to federal authorities for aid.

The governor and lieutenant-governor also sent telegrams directly to President Roosevelt and to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Kapp said.

The farm bureau of Mississippi and Alabama joined the Louisiana farm bureau, Kapp asserted, and appealed to the surplus commodity corporation to begin purchase on Monday of Louisiana Irish potatoes at $1.50 per 100 pounds of U. S. No. 1 grade and $1.25 per 100 pounds of U. S. No. 2 grade.

"The early potatoes are mostly gone," Kapp said, "but the poor farmers with big crops of late potatoes just coming in can't find a decent market price for their product. Something has to be done."

gambler's name was Arnold Rothstein. He had a gambling house around the corner.

YOU SOMETIMES heard one of Arnold Rothstein's lobbyists presenting Mr. Rothstein to a stranger "as Mr. Hemingway." This introduction was the tip-off to Mr. Rothstein that the person brought to his office was a prospect for Mr. Rothstein's gaming establishment.

Afterwards the title "Mr. Hemingway" came into somewhat general use on Broadway as a jocularly, until a real Mr. Hemingway appeared to give the name a dignity that brooked no further riffing.

We refer of course, to Mr. Ernest Hemingway, one of our three greatest living writers. However, there was no joke about "Mr. Hemingway" in Arnold Rothstein's time, either.

There were four entrances to "Jack's," as we recall—three on Sixth avenue, and one on Forty-Third street. It was through the Sixth avenue entrances that the old "flying wedge" of waiters, mobilized at the buzz of the cashier's desk, used to hurl the students from Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, when their football celebrations passed the bounds of decorum in "Jack's."

To this day you can find on the face of the Hippodrome across the way, deep dents left by the strong, clean, manly young bodies of the students.

The old "flying wedge" was generally led by a then stalwart, blonde gentleman named Jack Spooner, who could juggle a student in either hand while kicking goal with a third off the hip. The last time we saw Mr. Spooner he was bowing the ladies and gentlemen in and out of Mr. Dempsey's tavern, and there was about him a manner of maturity, and also embonpoint, that caused us to express doubt that Mr. Spooner could now handle even a prep school student with any facility.

MARBLE'S BETTER BARBECUE

1000 Breard Street

Phone 2617

H. H. MARBLE'S

OLD JACK DUNSTAN must have had a great appreciation of genius, for the rules of the house were always expanded to cover the unconventionalities of poets, artists, musicians, cartoonists, and working journalists.

We had a wild poet around "Jack's" in those days, who stood so well with old Jack Dunstan that if, for any reason, the poet was hurried out of one of the four entrances, he could come in another, and his previous transgression was automatically expunged until he had been hurried out of all four doors. They were out for the rest of the night.

Not for worlds would we bring the flush of embarrassment to a now wholly stainless cheek by mentioning names, but that wild poet is at this time a dignified editorial columnist on the New York American, who probably will not thank us for reminding him of those doors.

But, enough of small talk. We started out with the murals that used to be in "Jack's," and what we wish to relate of those murals is that they were the work of the late Mr. Edward Simmons, whose memory has been revived by the newspaper re-discovery of his famous murals in a court room of the old Criminal Courts building at White and Centre streets.

It was feared that the demolition of this building would entail the destruction of the three Simmons panels on which the eyes of thousands of lawyers, jurists, and criminals have gazed down through the years, and which had been regarded as masterpieces of their kind. Now it is thought that the panels, for which Mr. Simmons got about $6,500 at the rate of $40 per square foot, can be saved.

OLD JACK DUNSTAN always said that Mr. Simmons "ate out" the story of "Little Red Riding Hood," and that seems quite probable as it is unlikely that old Jack would have paid the cash fee Mr. Simmons would have required for that considerable job.

It is quite probable, too, that Mr. Simmons did the work in somewhat jocular mood, and not as a matter of necessity. He was an old patron of "Jack's" along with Stanford White, and other artistic notables of the day, and old timers recall that the payment for the panels was always a subject of jest among them.

None-the-less, Mr. Simmons did a fine job, and old Jack Dunstan used to remark, somewhat ruefully, we thought, that the murals represented a lot of food and drink.

They were still there when prohibition closed the hottest center of night life the big town ever knew, before, or since, but now there is no vestige of them in the premises over which "Jack's" once spread. So we called up Mr. William Andrew Mackay, who used to be an associate of Mr. Simmons, and asked him if he knew what had become of the murals.

"Oh, they must have been destroyed," said Mr. Mackay. "I remember they were painted on a very thin fabric, that could not have stood much wear and tear, and I think they are like everything else about the glory that was Jack's—just a memory."

FAMOUS LOVERS DESIRE SECRECY

Young Roosevelt And Ethel Du Pont Wish They Weren't Watched

By Sigrid Arne

WILMINGTON, Del., May 29.—(AP)—Right now Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., and Ethel du Pont wish their names were Smith and Jones. They're in love in the old-fashioned way. But they have to live the life of two goldfish in a glass bowl.

If they were just Franklin Smith and Ethel Jones they could hold hands, go shopping and whisper sweet nothings during a waltz without the whole world knowing it.

But young Franklin's father is president, and young Ethel du Pont's family has a gosh-awful lot of millions. So this last month before they marry is proving half a love-idyll and half a dodging of cameras, telephones and crowds.

They both wish it could be otherwise. They're taking their marriage June 30 very seriously. They want the right start, and they want it to last. He wants to earn his way, and she wants to be an old-fashioned wife like her mother.

They met like hundreds of other college youngsters: at a dance in New York four years ago. He liked her golden hair and flower-like face before he knew her name.

True love's course didn't run smoothly. The boy's father had his "New Deal" in full swing in Washington. The girl's family didn't like the elders' fight through the campaign, but the youngsters kept on seeing each other.

Of course, there were arguments behind closed doors. The girl's father admitted, grinning, to curious friends, "What can I do? He's such a fine boy."

Then the du Ponts took their daughter to Europe. Maybe it was to see if she knew how to swim, and maybe Young Franklin decided to see how the other half lives. He drove a truck for a New Jersey yeast company.

When the du Ponts returned in late summer Franklin commanded a plane and a coast guard cutter to land him on the boat outside Quarantine.

The youngsters kept on going to dances in protected "four hundred" homes where the news never leaked out.

Then in November the girl's father, Eugene du Pont, a quiet and scholarly country gentleman, phoned the papers. Planes and trains dumped reporters at his estate, and the engagement was announced.

They're being married at 5 p.m. June 30, in the ancient Du Pont church that sits in the Delaware hills. Miss du Pont chose that hour because of the twilight hush and the rose sunset that will stream through the stained-glass windows. No one but family and very close friends will see the ceremony.

Members of the Monroe post's auxiliary will aid the newly-formed auxiliary of the Ruston post in a similar poppy sale to be held there June 5.

Commander E. H. Miller last night expressed the thanks of the post and auxiliary for the hearty response that was given by the people of Monroe in putting the sale over.

He also stated that all business houses who aided in advertising the sale in any way.

1. Wearin's cry will be "sooie!" which is the way they call hogs in Iowa.

2. Mouton's shout will be "a la bas!" which is the greeting used in the Louisiana Cajun country.

3. The struggle will be a point match, divided thus—three points for volume, two for musical tone and one for perfection of delivery.

To assure impartiality, the callers will insist on a jury of their colleagues from New England and the far west—arbiters who have no sectional prejudices.

Asked if they will aim their shouts at anything in particular, both contestants said "no."

"We'll just call," said Wearin, "and see what comes."

COLD BOTHERING GOVERNOR LECHE

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(AP)—Governor Richard W. Leche last night cancelled a high school graduation speaking engagement at Baton Rouge because of a slight illness and came to New Orleans to rest up for a series of speaking in north Louisiana.

"The governor has been around the state quite a bit of late and I guess he picked up a slight cold," Mrs. Leche said. "It is nothing serious."

The governor is planning to greet Postmaster-General Farley Monday in Baton Rouge. Farley will be the principal speaker at Louisiana State university commencement exercises on Monday night.

CAUTION ORGED

produced today a revival, from another quarter, of demands for general increases in income tax rates. Senator LaFollette, Progressive, Wisconsin, said he would try to have such a revision included in the administration's tax legislation.

The government also gave attention to another financial matter—war debts—during the day. The state department sent routine notes to 12 defaulting countries that their installments come due June 15.

Finland, the only nation which has paid up each time in recent years, announced it would have its $163,143 installment ready when the date arrived. Nothing was heard from the other nations. A total of $1,520,159,863 in current and unpaid installments will be due on June 15.

Other Washington developments: Justice Van Devanter sat in for the last time on the regular Saturday conference of the supreme court. The 78-year-old jurist will step down from the high bench after the final public meeting of the tribunal on Tuesday.

The state department contemplated moving the embassy in Spain out of Valencia, target of insurgent air raids. The justice department instructed Philip Murray, union leader in the steel strike, to present to the federal district attorney in Cleveland any evidence he had that the Republic Steel corporation has violated federal law.

vent arms and men from reaching either side in the Spanish civil war. The Valencia government earlier in the day answered a protest from Admiral von Feschel, commander of German warships in the Mediterranean, declaring the non-intervention control plan provided that ships must remain at least 10 miles off Spanish coasts.

Von Feschel protested that government planes had flown over German control ships several times "as if to attack." This the Valencia government denied.

The government also warned von Feschel that it could not guarantee the safety of German naval craft participating in the international patrol if they enter insurgent ports "without justification."

The ministry declared the Admiral Scheer was in the Bay of Ibiza next to the breakerwater.

"Moreover," the announcement said, "control of the island of Ibiza according to decisions of the non-intervention committee is charged to the French navy."

"Consequently, the German cruiser for Postmaster-General Farley because of the improved postal service that has been given through the local post-office during Mr. Farley's administration of his important post.

Mr. Wooten gave out figures to show that in the past four years the business of the Monroe and West Monroe post-offices has increased to such an extent that the number of employees required to handle it have almost doubled. Classified according to type of service, Mr. Wooten made the comparison as follows:

	1933	1937
City carriers	8	15
Star route carriers	3	5
Clerks	15	22
Custodial employees	2	7
Special delivery messengers	1	2
Rural carriers	3	3
Substitute carriers	2	6
	36	64

The comparison of postal receipts in the two offices was given as follows:

	1933	1937
Monroe	$111,941.64	$164,721.20
West Monroe	$627.30	$14,090.10

In the same period the city delivery territory has been extended to include Fairview and Sherouse additions, besides ten blocks of the north and south streets in the southern part of town. A branch postoffice has also been established at Northeast Center L. S. U. for the accommodation of students.

Three deliveries daily now serve the business section of Monroe, instead of two as formerly.

The population served by the Monroe postoffice in Ouachita parish has increased from 42,571 in 1930 to 44,264 in 1936. The number of miles traveled each day by rural route carriers to serve this population totals 193, besides 231 miles covered by star route carriers.

PLAN DEDICATION OF TECH BUILDING

Commencement Activities To Be Combined With Leche Hall Program

RUSTON, La., May 29.—(Special)—By combining its forty-second annual commencement activities with the dedication of Leche hall, new administration and classroom building, Louisiana Tech has planned a series of memorable events expected to attract throngs to the campus.

The senior class dance, staged in the women's gymnasium Saturday night, opened the festivities.

Baccalaureate services are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday, in the Tech stadium, with the Rev. John Caylor, pastor of the Highland Baptist church of Shreveport, preaching the sermon.

Monday evening at 7 o'clock, the senior class exercises will be observed at the stadium. Billy Mitchell of Ruston, president of the graduating class, will preside, with the program being as follows: Salutatory, Jack Pullig, Gibsland; presentation of the class gift to the college, Peggy Mosley, Stonewall; acceptance of the gift, President E. S. Richardson of Louisiana Tech; presentation of student awards, President Richardson; reading of the class poem, Hazel Lea Nowell, Mansfield; traditional presentation of the senior class mantle to the junior class, by Billy Mitchell to James Price of Logansport; valedictory, Carrie Mae Stephenson, Ruston; and the singing of the Tech "Alma Mater."

A faculty-senior reception at the women's dormitory will follow the class exercises.

The seniors will be guests of President and Mrs. Richardson for breakfast at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Officers of the Tech Alumni association will be elected at a business meeting of that organization to be held in the library at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. Present officers include J. Polard Seely, Shreveport, president; Mrs. Gusie Ayres, Ruston, vice-president; and J. W. Evans, Ruston, secretary-treasurer. Present members of the executive council are: B. F. O'Neal, Shreveport; D. W. McBride, Oak Grove; W. Poole Robinson, Ruston; and Dr. J. H. Barnes, Ruston. The association will name a successor to Mr. McBride, whose term on the council is expiring.

An open-air concert by the Tech band is billed from 3 to 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, after which the dedication of the new Leche hall will begin. The dedicatory program, in addition to music by the Tech choir, includes a welcome talk by President Richardson; the dedicatory address by Loris M. Wimberly of Arcadia, speaker of the state house of representatives; and a speech by Governor Richard W. Leche. Formal opening and inspection of the new building will follow.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, on route from Vicksburg, Miss., to Magnolia, Ark., is scheduled to stop in Ruston at 4:35 p.m. on Tuesday, according to Zolite Meadows, Ruston postmaster. Whether it will be possible for Mr. Farley to appear in connection with the dedicatory ceremonies at Tech, however, has not yet been ascertained, although several requests have been made in that direction.

The commencement and dedication activities will continue at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, when English folk dances will be given by students of the women's physical education department on the lawn at the president's house. A barbecue will be given near the home economics building at 6 p.m.

Commencement exercises will be held at the stadium at 8 p.m. Tuesday, with 152 seniors receiving degrees. Dr. Charles W. Pipkin, dean of the graduate school of Louisiana State university, will deliver the address. His subject will be "Can Education Make Democracy Succeed?"

During 1936, 900,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy were produced through means of internal combustion, as compared to 870,411,000 kilowatt hours from the same source during 1935.

FARMER DENIES HE KILLED WIFE

Asserts He Knew Nothing Of Operation Which Caused
Her Death

WOODBURY, Tenn., May 29.—(P)—Expressing deep love for his wife, John W. Davis, poverty-stricken farmer, denied emphatically today that he was responsible for her death through an abortion which a warrant charges was "performed by the use of scissors or some other similar instrument."

The 65-year-old defendant, his heavy beard shaved off, denied also that he was a "hard task master" when he used his wife, Jodie, 34, and his two stepchildren in front of a plow because their horse had died.

Testifying at his preliminary hearing on a murder charge, "Uncle John," as his lawyers addressed him, said: "This ain't the first time we made a cron this way" and added that his wife "had been a-join" that—the same thing" before their marriage.

Davis said he never worked them like stock.

The family helped him to plow the garden last year, he added.

An autopsy disclosed that Mrs. Davis died early this week as the result of a criminal operation.

State Senator James H. Cummings, of defense counsel, asked the defendant if he had any part in such an operation or encouraged anyone else to perform it. Davis replied in the negative.

"Were you in love with your wife?" Cummings asked.

"Yes, sir," Davis replied.

He said that he had been attentive to her in her last illness.

Prosecution witnesses testified that the farmer had attributed his wife's illness at one time to eating a fly, at another to green huckleberry pie and again to poisoning from preserved food.

Walter L. McCrary, representing the state, asked how he reconciled those statements. Davis said that in each instance "I told them just what she had said."

He related that there were many times during the day his wife was stricken when he was not in her presence and added that "she had plenty of opportunities" for such an operation to be performed without his knowledge.

Davis' 14-year-old stepson, Charley Hensley, testified that on that day his mother had helped to pull a "bull tongue" plow on their tiny farm.

He said the defendant guided the plow "while me and my mother and my biggest sister," who is 11, pulled it.

"Me suffered pretty bad all night," he continued. "She hollered all night."

Despite that her cries were "pretty loud all night," the witness testified that his stepfather slept undisturbed in another bed in the same room.

Charley said that was on Friday night of last week. On Saturday and Sunday, the boy continued, Davis did what he could to relieve his wife's sufferings and called a doctor. She died Tuesday morning.

Dr. J. F. Adams testified that wounds found on Mrs. Davis' body could not have been self-inflicted.

WPA CONFERENCE ENDS SATURDAY

Supervisors From Various Districts Close Three-Day Meeting

The WPA has passed its experimental period and is now ready to get down to a highly efficient stage as it rounds out two years' work, said Mrs. Leo G. Spofford, state director of women's and professional projects of this group Saturday. Mrs. Spofford returned to New Orleans late yesterday after having attended the three-day supervisors' conference that closed here Saturday.

She said its chief purpose is to find employment for the able-bodied destitute, to preserve their ability to carry on in the crafts in which they are skilled, and at the earliest possible time to return their services to private industry. This, she assured was, in a nutshell, the objective of WPA activities.

The purpose of the conference, which was attended by supervisors of women's and professional WPA projects, from various cities of the state, was to consider general policies, discuss problems of teaching, leadership, the training of understudies, project inspection and project supervision.

The interpretation of the duties and responsibilities of project supervisors was considered and other matters of interest to all WPA leaders.

Three men representing sponsors of local WPA projects were introduced, each delivering short talks to the assemblage. They were W. L. Neel, city of Monroe engineer; Lloyd L. Warren, president of the Ouachita parish professional association; and W. H. McLaurin, superintendent of Jackson parish schools.

The Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe entertained the visitors with a theater party at the Paramount on Thursday night. These in attendance expressed their pleasure over the results of the conference which they stated would prove of practical value in their work.

Wind velocity within a tornado has never been measured, but is thought to be about 500 miles an hour.

DOING GROUND WORK AS SCOUT

Symbolic of the purpose of the Girl Scout movement to guide the lives of children from the earliest moment by careful training and care, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt plants a little tree in the yard of the National Girl Scouts' Little House in Washington, D. C. The girl holding the tree is Jean Gray.

These in attendance expressed their pleasure over the results of the conference which they stated would prove of practical value in their work.

WANT
 cussion the most free and opinion most positive. The result is that we are never fewer than two sides every question—including what right and what ought not to be noted—and that all sides of every question are indignantly vocal.
 Which means in practice that the newspaper office becomes a cockpit warring factions, since everyone of any shade of opinion or prejudice is incumbent upon him to lay his cards before the editor, with a demand that they be adopted. Should a newspaper, after this opportunity learn the truth, embrace the cause the opposition, the editor becomes her an idiot or a corrupted propagandist, and there rise dark murmurs out of the need of a competing paper.
 The head of a well-known syndicate has caused to be framed in the editorial rooms of all his papers the following terse observation: "Whatever a patron wants to get published is advertising. Whatever he wants to keep out of the paper is news."
 And that illuminates a principal difficulty in small-town publishing: that to print the pressure for free publication of all manner of puffery, advertising and promotion material is tremendous, and equally tremendous is the pressure to omit news of no greatest interest, and even importance, for strictly personal reasons. The schools, the Parent-Teachers' association, the baseball club, the Merchants' association, the Safety league, the women's clubs, the churches, the labor unions, the Boy Scouts, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs—none could over the page with a list of the groups which feel themselves entitled to free publicity to further their activities. The unfortunate part is that many of them really are so entitled, from the standpoint of public welfare and news interest. Unfortunately, because those which are not entitled to find it hard to understand the reasoning by which one group rates headlines and pictures, while their less noisy rivals are ignored.
 "You gotta treat 'em body alike" is the fogged credo of the provincial democracy, and fortunate is the small-town paper, making its painful choice, which does not find its decisions attacked as evidence of personal prejudice, snobbery, or worse.
 The metropolitan press has to renege the press agent and the organized assaults of various types of group promotion. But the city paper is dictated against them by the very terms of its existence; it may choose between those it will support and those it will not on the basis of news value and public desirability alone. Any given choice will alienate a negligible fraction of its readers. Indeed, there are a few great newspapers which seem to prosper, not by pleasing but by offending great groups. Of course, this is not really true—the exercise of their news services, statute circulation methods, exclusive columns and other features, keep the readers interested in spite of an irritating editorial page and a challenging and provocative news policy.
 "Keep It Out Of The Paper"
 But the small-town paper's circulation potential is strictly limited. Every subscriber is precious; to lose a few hundred by siding over their prejudices is a matter of concern. So when the local Townsend club sends in a column or two of scatter-witted economic argument, the editor does not pitch it in the wastebasket, as his good sense suggests, but finds a place for it in the letter-to-the-editor column, and hopes that not too many will be caught by the glitter of the fallacy. He knows how much his circulation and advertising can be made to suffer by the next well-paid Townsendite orator who may choose to depict him as a tool of the greedy interests, driving the suffering and the aged the right of free speech.
 Yet the greater bane of the small-town paper is the pressure to "keep it out of the paper." It may be anything from an arrest for "drunk and disorderly" to a recall petition for the city government, but there it is: somebody who wants to keep it out, or at least to inject the handling of its own interest into the handling of it. Ingenious social sentimental and personal pressure is used to make refusal difficult, and it is to the credit of the small-town press that in major matters it so consistently flies in the face of its own selfish interest, and discharges the duty which is its reason for being.
 Let us suppose that the editor's open door is invaded by a gentleman who has either contrition or defiance, to suggest that nothing be put into the paper about the fact that he was just fined for driving while drunk. His car side-swiped another, and one of the occupants is in the hospital. The newspaper is conducting a campaign to keep drunken drivers off the roads, and has been urging the courts to make examples of all violators. But his case, it appears, is "different." He has an invalid mother, an expectant

A Hoax That Got Out Of Hand
 Some of the folks love to hoax the paper. It is a joke highly esteemed to give a reporter false information leading to publication of something embarrassing to a neighbor. Usually there is no malice. The butt of the joke is expected to grin and bear it, and the newspaper to make its retraction gracefully, all in a spirit of good clean fun. Sometimes, though, the hoax gets out of hand.
 A reporter came in from his beat excitedly one morning, with a story about a lion cub killed by an Indian not far from the town of Natchez, in the Mississippi valley, but there was no doubt about this one. The reporter had seen the hide, which was being dressed by a local furrier. Unimpeachable experts verified that it was indeed the skin of an African lion cub, a few days old.
 Naturally, we hopped to that story. How could a baby lion be loose in our settled farming country? As he must have had a mother, obviously a lioness was loose among us, a menace to livestock and to human life. The furrier lasted a month. Someone remembered a wagon show that had tricked through the region, and the lioness was accounted for; she must have escaped from the show. Soon after that, imaginative persons began to report seeing the lioness. She and calves began to disappear, others kept their children home from the country schools. People stayed indoors at night. More than one man sat up with a shotgun to watch his calves.
 A delegation of serious farmers came to town one day and stopped into the newspaper to check up. By this time we ourselves believed the story, although we had broken it the first day more or less with tongue in cheek.
 We took the delegation of farmers to the fur shop and let them see and handle the skin for themselves. It was convincing. They went home and organized a great lion hunt, and for a week they beat the wood lots and hay meadows, accompanied by photographers and reporters. The Chicago papers sent special correspondents. It was a wow.
 The lioness was never found—since she had never existed. Just when the headlines had swelled to banner proportions, a hint from a friend gave me the clue to the mystery, and presented me with a problem in journalistic conduct. By this time we had built the story to such proportions that we dared not puncture it. We should have had a thousand angry farmers seeking reprisal and the whole midwest press making fun of us.
 For the simple explanation was that during the engagement of a lady lion tamer who was doing an act in the vaudeville theater, one of her pots had given birth to a cub, which had died, and she had given its hide to a friend in town as a keepsake. The furrier had only thought to have a little fun with his friend.
 The furrier and the owner of the hide were by now appalled. Together we swore to bottle up the facts, and we tapered off the story. Without publicity to fan their imaginations, people stopped seeing the lion, and the farmers abandoned the hunt in the belief that the lioness had left that part of the country. The story died safely away.
 Alas, Poor Yorick!
 I shall not forget the scene in the potter's field at the county poor farm, when the body of an unknown man, found dead after the spring break-up, was exhumed for identification by his son from a distant city. The evidence was a shock to a cub reporter, but not so to the brisk young man whose father had disappeared.
 "Yes," he said, lifting his father's skull, "that's dad, all right. He was dead, you know, and I'd recognize that dent in the top of his head anywhere."
 He placed the skull prominently on the run of the coffin, and asked us all—coroner, policeman, undertaker, reporter—to line up in a group around it while he unlimbered a camera.
 "I want to take a picture home as a souvenir for the folks," he explained. "I'll give you each a print, and one for the paper."
 He did too. It was a clear, sharp print, and the young man was agrieved when the paper refused to publish it.
 Cranks of every sort besiege newspaper offices everywhere. In the small places, where the editor's door must be open to all they are hard to handle, sometimes. Their obsessions may range from depression panaceas and new monetary systems to downright religious mania. In most cases they are only excitable and argumentative. I remember only one who was dangerous.
 He had been writing us a long series of letters, complaining that we were leagued with the pastor of his church against him, and making incoherent threats. This is not uncommon, so we paid little attention.
 But one night the editor was working alone in his office when the man came in—a huge country blacksmith. He announced that he was tired of the persecution he had been undergoing, and that "the Lord" had instructed him to "settle this thing right now."
 The editor stalled for time, hoping some member of the staff would drop in to help. Becoming completely sympathetic, he offered the blacksmith his protection. He told of a refuge which had been provided against those mysterious ones who, he complained, would just slip out the back door and down the alley, at the end of the street, and he kept thinking of all the heavy metal objects around a composing room.
 There is a fitting sequel. Three days later the country blacksmith man reported that the blacksmith's family had canceled their subscription because the editor had their relative put in jail.
 I have a vivid recollection of re-

33 NAMED FOR SPEEDWAY RACE

Snyder Wins $2,000 Qualifying Prize By Turning In Fastest Time

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29.—(AP)—Thirty-three kings of speed were ready tonight for the sound of the starting bomb which will send them away at 10 o'clock Monday (C. S. T.) in quest of $50,000 in prize money awarded at the annual 500-mile Indianapolis motor speedway race.

The two-week qualifying trials ended today, with a full field of 33 starters and two alternates. One car was on the track attempting to qualify when the trials ended. It was driven by Johnny Seymour of Detroit, but he was flagged down.

Head qualifiers as far as speed was concerned were Jimmy Snyder of Chicago, who won $2,000 in qualifying prizes by running 25 miles at 125.28 miles an hour.

The coveted pole position was held by "Wild Bill" Cummings of Indianapolis, who qualified on the first day at 123.45 miles an hour. Snyder did not qualify until a week ago.

The trials, which saw the highest speed in history at the Indianapolis track, resulted in the deaths of two men. Both, George Warford of Indianapolis and Albert Opalko of Gary, were killed yesterday in separate accidents.

Last year the pole position was won at a speed of slightly more than 119 miles an hour and the lowest qualifying speed was 111. This year the lowest was 116.32 by A. B. (Deacon) Litz of Dubois, Pa., the 255-pound race driver.

Frank Weane of Los Angeles filled the 33rd place by running at 118.22 miles an hour. A few minutes later Ted Horn of Los Angeles, winner of second money in last year's race, got in the field by running at 118.68 miles an hour. His effort eliminated Joel Thorne, the 22-year-old New York millionaire, who was the slowest of the previous qualifiers.

Three previous race winners are in the starting field. They are Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Calif., winner in 1929, 1933 and 1936; Bill Cummings, winner in 1934, and Kelly Pettito the Los Angeles Italian who won in 1935.

Despite the Athletics' amazing start, you can still get 60 to 1 against Mr. Mack's club to win the pennant.

M. C. McDonald, Bun Beasley and other officials of the McGuffie Park Golf club, together with Jim McKenzie, the genial McGuire pro, have about completed plans for their big golf tournament in July. Some "big name" golfers will compete for real prize money and trophies. It's expected to be the biggest golf attraction ever held in these parts.

Paulino Uzcudun is said to be driving the personal staff car of General Franco over in Spain.

We've already selected one man for the all-star Cotton States league team to be selected late this summer. We're convinced Eddie Hock is by far the classiest third sacker in the circuit. We've heard the same thing from other scribes over the loop.

There is a report in the American league that Washington would like to sell Al Simmons to a National league club.

Monroe fishermen are practicing up for the Bayou Macon Fishing rodeo to be held at Delhi on July 9. An unusually large entry list from Monroe is being filed. Mayor Smith has promised to see that the rodeo is a success.

CRIPPLED ANZACS UNABLE TO WIN SET FROM U. S.

Budge Beats Crawford, Grant Trims Bromwich; Doubles Match Today

By Alan Gould
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., May 29.—(AP)—Shot by illness and with the front-line survivors unable to withstand the shock of America's robust tennis attack, Australia's hard-luck Davis Cup forces were put to rout this afternoon in the opening singles matches of the North American zone finals.

Under a broiling sun red-headed Donald Budge, of California, and diminutive Bryan Grant of Georgia swept the Australians right off the turf courts of the West Side club's big stadium.

Budge, ace of the American team, blasted the veteran Jack Crawford to the tune of 6-1, 6-3, 6-2. Grant then signaled his debut in the zone finals by trouncing 18-year-old Jack Bromwich, ambidextrous Australian substitute, 6-2, 7-5, 6-1.

The home team thus built up a 2-0 lead, without so much as the loss of a set. The Americans now need only one more victory to clinch the series, with the doubles scheduled tomorrow and the final two singles contests booked for Monday. They seem assured of a decisive triumph, thereby qualifying to play the European zone winner for the right to challenge England, and making the trip abroad with United States hopes of international conquest higher than they have been in most years since the famous trophy was lost, in 1927.

The Australians, who beat America by 3-2 last year, played today with two of their stars, Adrian K. Quist and Vivian McGrath, on the sidelines. Quist, erstwhile singles ace, who had been named to play the second singles match today, was withdrawn from the team upon doctor's advice.

McGrath, himself still feeling the effects of a cold contracted several weeks ago in Mexico City, was not considered in condition to tackle the singles but was definitely named to tonight by Captain Cliff Sproule to pair with Crawford in the doubles tomorrow.

Budge and his California teammate, Gene Mako, will represent the United States in the third and perhaps deciding match.

Another United States victory tomorrow would turn Monday's singles matches into virtual exhibitions. Budge plays Bromwich and Grant meets Crawford on the holiday program.

Dwight F. Davis, donor of the historic trophy that bears his name, was in the gallery that witnessed America's victory parade this afternoon.

Budge justified the high hopes placed in him by the dynamic fashion in which he polished off the one-time world champion, Crawford. The California red-head broke Crawford's service in the third game to start a five game winning streak.

Budge, while losing his own service only once, broke Crawford's seven times. The Australian committed no less than ten double-faults.

Grant justified the confidence placed in his selection for regular duty but, in the final analysis, Bromwich beat himself by wild and erratic shotmaking. The Georgia midget reeled off five straight games before the young Anzac got his feet on the ground. Grant exasperated Bromwich with his "slow-ball" tactic, which punctuated prolonged rallies, and rarely failed to seize an opening.

Jumping into a three-hole lead at the outset of the morning round, Sweeney never looked like a loser though Munn, fighting doggedly, caught him at the 22nd and even went ahead momentarily at the 23rd.

That proved, however, to be the Irishman's last gasp. Stung into action, Sweeney won the next three holes in a row and thereafter was never headed.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 29.—(AP)—Circuit clout broke up two pitchers' battles here today with Chattanooga and Knoxville splitting a double header, the Lookouts winning the first game 5 to 3 and the Smokies taking the nightcap, 3 to 1.

Home runs in the ninth inning by Andrus and Crompton gave Bud Tinning the edge over Leo Moon, Knoxville's veteran routhpaw. Earl Webb's homer in the second game provided the margin of victory for the Smokies. The split gave both teams two wins each for the four-game series.

AMERICAN WINS BRITISH AMATEUR

Bob Sweeney's Stamina Carries Him To 3-2 Victory Over Veteran Irishman

SANDWICH, Eng., May 29.—(AP)—Youth and stamina carried the 20-year-old American expatriate, Bob Sweeney, to the British amateur golf championship today.

Lionel Munn, veteran Irish lawyer who was playing golf before Sweeney was born, gave the Anglo-American youngster a terrific battle but finally wilted in the sweating heat and surrendered, 3 and 2, in the 36-hole final.

"I confess I'm a trifle weary," the Irishman, obviously exhausted, said with a smile as Sweeney rammed down the final 20-foot putt that ended the match on the 34th green.

Sweeney's victory gave America a technical claim to the title for the third time in four years. Bob was born in Pasadena, Calif., and still is an American citizen although he was reared abroad and for the last 15 years has lived either in France or England.

Lawson Little, another Californian, won the championship in 1934 and 1935 but then turned professional. Hector Thomson, Scottish star, who won last year, was prevented by ill health from defending the crown.

Sweeney, a sensation on the greens during the early rounds of the tournament, had lost this fine golfing edge by the time he squared off against Munn. This was particularly true in the afternoon round when he either won or lost 12 of the last 13 holes during which he had two sixes and three fives on his card.

Jumping into a three-hole lead at the outset of the morning round, Sweeney never looked like a loser though Munn, fighting doggedly, caught him at the 22nd and even went ahead momentarily at the 23rd.

CHURCH, BROWN FURNISH THRILLS

L. S. U. Freshman And Baker Youngster Keep A. A. U. Meet From Flopping

BATON ROUGE, La., May 29.—(AP)—A Louisiana State freshman and a lean high school boy saved the 31st annual Southern Amateur Athletic union track and field meet from mediocrity today.

Frank Church, speedy L. S. U. tearing, raced to a new record in the half mile, a fast 1:54.9 performance with such ease and grace that the handful of thrill-starved fans predicted great things from him in future competition.

Church erased a mark that had been in the books for 22 years. It was set by Don Scott of Mississippi State back in 1915 at 1:55.6.

Slim highschooler Billy Brown of Baker, La., won third place in the meet on his own achievements—first place in the hop, step and jump in the broad jump, in which he set a new record, and a second place in the high jump.

Louisiana State was a meet winner by a landslide of points, with purple and gold runners finishing one-two-three in more than one event. Team scoring wound up this way: L. S. U., 116; Loyola of New Orleans 41; Baker High (Billy Brown) 13; Louisiana college 8; Mississippi State 7; Louisiana institute 4.

Brown jumped 24 feet, 8.3-8 inches in setting the new broad jump record, 13.4 inches better than the old mark. A record was posted in the 40-yard low hurdles, never before held in the Southern A. A. U. meet, when Sal Torres, L. S. U., won the event in 55.2.

Jake Waterer nosed out his teammate, Torres, in the 220-yard low hurdles to tie the meet record of .242, but in spite of the fact Waterer pined back his ears with adhesive tape in the 120-yard hurdle event, he could do no better than 15.2.

Closest finish of the meet came in the mile, in which Robert Ellis, tiny Mississippi State runner who captured both the mile and half mile in yesterday's junior meet, raced neck and neck with L. S. U.'s Big Jim Welch during most of the second lap. Near the finish line, Ellis turned on a burst of speed to win by yards.

Murrell Jones has been elected president of the Ouachita Parish High School "O" club, an athletic organization, to succeed Sherman Gideon, who graduates, it was announced yesterday.

Other officers who will serve during the next school year are: Cason Mitchell, who replaces Wright Sherard as vice-president; Alvin Fleming, who takes the secretary-treasurer post recently held by W. B. Stewart; and Fain Richards, who was elected sergeant-at-arms to succeed Joe Ben Jones. Coach Roy Ary is sponsor of the club.

Members of the club who are scheduled to graduate this year are: A. B. Myatt, Jr., Phillip Emberton, J. C. Black, Sherman Gideon, Clyde Royce, Richard Eason, Wright Sherard, Joe Ben Jones, Moose Peters, J. C. Coates and Abner McClary.

Returning members who will assist the new officials during the new school year are: James Bates, Paul Patterson, Floyd Vann, E. C. Hinton, Drew Takewell, Buford Goss and Watson Stron.

RIKARD GETS 5 HITS TO LEAD MONROE ATTACK

Hack, Bates And Rikard Hit Homers As Van Orsdol Subdues Vicksburg

VICKSBURG, Miss., May 29.—(Special)—Monroe's Twins today turned on the power that they exhibited early in the season and overwhelmed Vicksburg's Bill Billies, 14 to 4, in the first of a three-game series here.

The Twins, starting their barrage of base hits in the very first inning, pounded out 22 hits, including home runs by Cully Rikard, Gary Hack and Clair Bates, to thoroughly maul two Vicksburg hurlers.

Manager Ray Brubaker started with Claude Horton, who was routed in Monroe earlier in the week, and Claude lasted just one and one-third innings. The Vicksburg pilot then sent Chester Klamer to the mound, just as he did in Monroe when Horton was sent to the showers, and Klamer likewise proved no puzzle to the Twins. With the game already lost, Brubaker let Klamer start the third inning in punishment, and the Twins dealt out plenty during the remaining seven and two-thirds frames. Monroe finished just as strong as they started, scoring three runs in the ninth inning.

The Twins led off with one run in the first inning. Then in the second they teed off on Horton anew and before Klamer could get 'em out, four Monroe runs had crossed the plate.

The third inning was almost as bad for the Billies, with the Twins scoring three times. The visitors added two more in the fourth, one in the sixth and three in the ninth.

Jack Van Orsdol, ace righthander of the Monroe hurling corps, pitched for the Twins and turned in a seven-inning performance. Van eased up under his big lead and was touched for two runs in the fifth and two in the ninth. Two of Vicksburg's runs were unearned.

Rikard, who only recently came out of his batting slump, led the Monroe attack with five hits in six trips to the plate. Hack and Van Orsdol each got three hits, while Burroughs, Borum, Haynes, Bates and Butler got one hit apiece. Every player on the Monroe club hit safely at least once.

Getschel and Bartell were the best hitters for Vicksburg, each getting two safeties. One of Getschel's blows was a triple.

The second game of the series will be played Sunday and a large crowd is expected to turn out to see the old rivals battle. Manager Eddie Hock said either Dale Richardson or Bill Kent would start for the Twins. Manager Brubaker is expected to send Ernest Terry, big righthander, against the Monroe club.

WEILAND HALTS BUGS AFTER DIZ LOSES FIRST TILT

Jensen Hits Two Homers To Add To Dean's Woes In Opening Contest

ST. LOUIS, May 29.—(AP)—Lefty Bob Weiland turned in a fine pitching performance to keep the St. Louis Cardinals in third place in the National league race, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 2 to 1 in the final game of a twin bill here today, after the Bucs had clouted Dizzy Dean at will in the opener to win, 9 to 4.

But for a series of misplays by the Cardinal infield, the husky southpaw would have had a shutout, Johnny Dickshot, Pirate left fielder, scampered to third from first in the third inning on a wild throw by Leo Durocher, Card shortstop, and a fumble by Stu Martin, second sacker, and then scored on Gus Suhr's long fly for the only Pirate run.

The opener was hardly started before the Pirates were away to the safe lead of four runs. Woody Jensen, Buc center fielder, cracked out a homer, with Lloyd Waner on. Then Paul Waner singled and Arky Vaughan bunted safely for the fourth straight hit off Dizzy. Paul Waner scored on Lee Handley's slow roller and Vaughan slid home on Suhr's long fly. Jensen also hit for the circuit in the second.

Diz lasted until the sixth inning and was replaced by St. Johnson after he had allowed three more runs. Johnson gave way to Mike Ryba in the

HACK TOPS LEAGUE HITTERS WITH .365

TWINS OUTFIELDER REPLACES RIKARD AS FIRST BATTER

Haynes Leading In Home Runs And Runs Batted In; Greenville Best As Club

Clary Hack, who started the season at second base for Monroe but recently returned to his old post in the outfield, is setting the pace in Cotton States league batting with a mark of .365, according to latest official league averages, released yesterday.

Hack replaced Cully Rikard, Monroe outfielder who was leading the batting parade in official averages released two weeks ago. Rikard, who went into a two-weeks batting slump, dropped to .283, or 96 points from his .319 during the 14 days. The latest averages include games of last Monday and since that time, Rikard has been hitting the ball at a fast clip. Yesterday he got five hits at Vicksburg and undoubtedly will be back among the leaders when the next figures are compiled.

Kirk Haynes dropped 37 points to .305 during the two weeks but he's leading the league in runs batted in, with 40. He tops Kinzer, Greenville shortstop, by three in that department. Haynes has hit ten home runs to lead in circuit clouts. Masucci, El Dorado shortstop, is second with nine homers.

Manager Eddie Hock, the other Monroe player who was batting above .300 two weeks ago, has dropped to .289 to .285 "Red" Borum, Monroe shortstop, who wasn't included in the set of averages two weeks ago, is hitting the ball at a .278 clip, while Clair Bates, Twins first baseman, boosted his mark from .241 to .264. Clifford Johnson, who joined the Texarkana club last week-end, also showed a gain, moving up from .235 to .242. Johnson hit five home runs and drove in 15 runs while here.

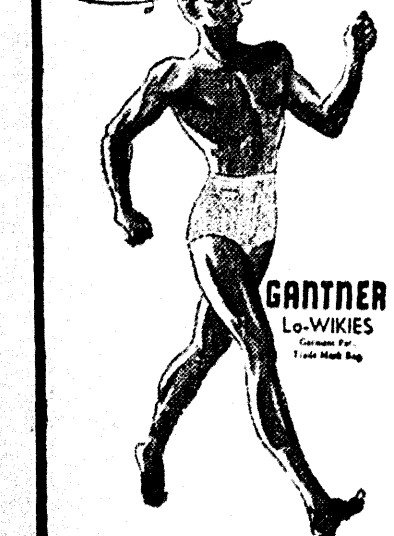

The gains of Greenville players featured the batting department during the two weeks period. Kinzer, Greenville shortstop, jumped from .308 to .343. Bagrosky, second baseman, increased his average from .308 to .322, while McElreath, who recently was released by the Bucks and joined the Greenwood club, boosted his mark from .317 to .336. Kirby Farrell, Bucks first baseman, added five points to his record reaching .326, while Rolek, an outfielder, is another .300 hitter, with .312.

The Greenville slugging attack sent that club to first place in team batting, with .294. Vicksburg is second with .280, and Monroe and Greenwood are tied for third place with .255. El Dorado is fifth with .253. Clarksdale sixth with .248. Pine Bluff seventh with .247 and Helena is last with an average of .237.

Greenville also lead in team fielding, with a .593 mark. The Helena club ranks second, three points behind, with .589. Bluff and Clarksdale tied for third with .553. The El Dorado club fielded at a .552 average for fifth place. Monroe follows with .551 and Vicksburg and Greenwood are tied for seventh place with .541.

DEFENDING CHAMP DEFEATS MANERO IN SEMI-FINALS

McSpaden Eliminates Ky Laf-foon, 2-1, In Other Match; Shute Impressive

By Scotty Reston
PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—Denny Shute and Harold "Jug" McSpaden, whose courses are approximately a mashie shot off the Boston common, today fought their way into the finals of the Professional Golfers association championship.

Shute, the defending titleholder, defeated National Open Champion Tony Manero, Peabody, Mass., 3 and 2. McSpaden beat Ky Laffoon, of Chicago, 2 and 1.

Relentless par golf gave Shute the battle of the champions. He simply went out and reeled off 34 holes in par, while the able and lionhearted Manero struggled and slipped and rallied, but never quite caught up.

McSpaden, on the other hand, blew hot and cold. In the morning he shot a 68, three better than par. In the afternoon he faded in the boiling sun but quelled a wicked hook just when it threatened to land him on the sidelines.

Shute took the lead at the fourth this morning when Tony explored a trap, and he held to it without a break the rest of the day. Tony kicked him father ahead at the fifth by missing a two foot putt, but Denny made up for it by missing a four footer on the sixth.

With a shouting gallery at his heels and a one hole advantage in his big brown bags, Dour Denny started out in the afternoon by clipping a Mashie Niblick shot six inches from the 20th cup. He won the hole and was two up. He held this advantage until the 26th green where he flubbed an approach, and lost the hole.

One up on the 30th tee, Denny dropped putts of six and 18 feet at the 30th and 33rd to win both holes and stretch his advantage to three up, the highest it was all day. A par at the 34th closed Tony out.

McSpaden drove all day like a coast guard gun, lashing out from the heels and recoiling with a dangerous stagger toward the back edge of the tee. He played every shot as if he were the last of his life, and made Laffoon's heart skip on the greens.

The big fellow was two putts better than par and three holes better than Laffoon on the first nine.

Laffoon, steady on the first nine, was brilliant on the second, and still disappointed. He came back in 34, two under par, and picked up only one hole. McSpaden missed his second at the 11th and lost the hole with a bogey. His lead was cut to a single hole at the 14th when he failed to hop a three-foot stymie, but he charged home like a champion.

Both got their pars at the 15th and 16th. Laffoon knocked in a six footer at the 17th for a birdie, and McSpaden matched it. Then at the 18th, with Laffoon six feet from the cup in two, "Jug" rolled one in from 18 feet to increase his morning lead to two holes.

"Jug" got the name because he used to be built like one—won the first two holes with pars in the afternoon. Four up, then, it looked as if he would run off with the methodical Laffoon.

Ky won the 21st by curling in a five-footer for a birdie four, and took the 25th when McSpaden's hook started flying over the thick grass. The Chicagoan also won the 26th when Jug three-putted, but the big boy came back with a 15-footer at the 27th.

Always good on the back nine, Laffoon dropped a 10-foot putt for a birdie at the 28th, and evened the match with another birdie on the 30th. They played the next two holes in par, and McSpaden went one up against the 33rd when Ky drove in the rough and tried unsuccessfully to whack out with a spoon.

McSpaden still held the one hole lead on the 35th tee. He hit two perfect shots to within four feet of the cup and dropped the putt for a birdie and the match.

TEXAS SOLONS VOTE REPEAL OF BETTING

AUSTIN, Tex., May 29.—(AP)—A house committee of the Texas legislature deliberated only a few minutes today before voting overwhelmingly a favorable report on a bill which would repeal wagering on horse racing.

The vote, although not unexpected, was the first blow to race betting in a special session of the legislature called by Governor James V. Allred to consider the one subject of repeal.

The committee also killed a bill intended to delay the effective date of repeal to August, 1939. The vote was 13 to 1.

Vote on the outright repeal by Governor Allred was 14 to 1.

Representative J. E. Winfree of Houston who offered the measure to delay repeal said track operators should be given an opportunity to recover more of their investment.

The committee recessed subject to call of the chair without passing on other racing bills, one of which would permit a continuation of legalized wagering under local option.

Most observers believed the main contest over the future of certificate wagering would come in the senate.

NEVILLE JUNIORS WIN

The Neville Junior Tigers walloped the Barksdall Faulk Grammar school Bears, 18 to 11, here yesterday. The batteries were Hoffman and Cornett for the winners, and Holloway and Sheppard for the losers. Maroney, Holloway and Sheppard, of the Bears, hit home runs.

UPSETS FEATURE RACING PROGRAM

Heefly Only Favorite To Win In Saturday Card Of Stake Events

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Except for the triumph of the three D's stable's Heefly in the Inaugural Handicap at Latonia, the favorites were put to rout in the outstanding events on the national turf program today.

Heefly, third in the Illinois Derby after racing well up with the early leaders in the Kentucky Derby, stepped a mile and a sixteenth in 1:43.5, within four-fifths of a second of the track record, to beat J. W. Parrish's derby horse, Dellor, and eleven other rivals. As the choice, the Texas-owned colt paid $5.80 for $2.

The Valdina farm of Texas made it a big day for the Lone Star state when it swept both feature events at Washington park. Lassator, paying $14.20, won the $2,000 Prairie stakes for two-year olds, and Sir Emerson accounted for the $3,000 Chicago Handicap to return $39.40 for $2.

Elmer V. Marx Tiger, and Hal Price Headley's Preeminent, both strongly backed, were also rans in the Prairie and Handicap respectively.

Mrs. Walter O'Hara's luck, which had extended through four previous stake races of the New England season, was broken when New Deal landed in second place back of F. L. Planders' Blackbird in the $5,000 Puritan Handicap. Blackbird, also well supported, paid $12.00.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Wood Song, rated as one of the leading contenders for the two-year-old crown, couldn't even finish in the money in the first juvenile stakes at Belmont park. Robert I. Gerry's Perpetuate, heavily played second choice at 3 to 1, led the field of seven juveniles over five furlongs.

The Wheatley stable's Melodist, candidate for next Saturday's running of the rich Belmont stakes, was fourth and last in a mile and an eighth race. Mrs. Julia M. Loft's Mosawtre, also eligible for the Belmont and 5 to 2 second choice to face Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin of England in the finals, Austin, favorite to succeed to the title won last year by Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany, defeated Christian Bousous of France, 7-5, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3. Von Cramm elected not to defend the singles crown although he played in the doubles.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., May 29.—(AP)—Alabama and Fordham universities will renew football relations October 7, 1939. Coach Frank Thomas announced here today.

Coach Thomas said the contest would be staged either in the Yankee stadium or the Polo Grounds, New York, unless the Giants and Yankees happen to be playing in world's series. In that event, the two teams will meet in Legion field, Birmingham, Ala.

Fordham defeated Alabama, 2 to 0 in 1933 in the only meeting between the two eleven.

CRABITES TALKS AT L. S. U. CENTER

Diplomas Given 102 Members
Of Graduating Class;
Awards Presented

As commencement speaker, appearing before the 1937 class of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State University, Friday night, Judge Pierre Crabites, of the law school at Louisiana State University, delivered an eloquent appeal to the graduates to regard the great privileges of higher education as a responsibility and trust. He urged upon the graduates "recognition of a divine power and an endeavor to return to the state something for the debt that has been imposed upon them in giving an education."

The 102 graduates of the class, attired in caps and gowns, filed into the college auditorium preceded by the faculty, similarly attired, to the strains of the processional march played by the Northeast Center orchestra of which Lowery Jefferson is director.

A tenor solo, "Would You Gain the Tender Creature?" was rendered by Dallas Goss with Mrs. Goss as the accompanist.

Dean S. A. Caldwell introduced Judge Crabites as a man of experience and character and ability as scholar, a native son of Louisiana although having had 26 years abroad as an international figure, largely in Egypt, where he represented the United States on the International Mixed Tribunal.

Judge Crabites said in part: "One thought is dominant in my mind tonight. That is that I am mindful of the great privileges you have had in obtaining your education. I know you appreciate what Louisiana State University means to you and the service this staff has accorded you. All these advantages beget responsibilities. You owe a debt to them for what they have done in your behalf and higher education should mean greater responsibilities in passing on to less favored ones some of the benefits you have derived."

"Most of you are of Anglo-Saxon blood, at least you have lived in a country largely made up of descendants of Anglo-Saxons in whom is instilled a love for liberty."

"At Runnymede, the English people received from the hands of King

John that great Magna Charta which they received as a responsibility, passing on to their descendants the benefits of the liberty and political privileges they had gained as a priceless heritage."

"In later years, England in carrying out her vast colonial system, preserved this same spirit of conferring powers and imposing responsibilities that characterized earlier pioneers."

The speaker declared that regardless of creeds and denominationalism, a nation should recognize a higher power, that of the Almighty. He said that unfortunately the present generation is not passing on to posterity, certain elements that have been handed down to it from a generation immediately preceding it.

He urged loyalty to principles of democratic government, loyalty to the flag, and for all that it stands for. Communism is endeavoring to creep in, he said, and urged his hearers to be on their guard to preserve the high principles on which the nation was founded.

After diplomas were awarded to the 102 members of the 1937 class, the awards such as are made at each commencement were bestowed.

Hugh Wallace, vice-president of the Monroe Kiwanis club, made presentation of the silver loving cup that the group awards annually for the best short story written by a student of the college, to Elizabeth Whitley, Dean S. A. Caldwell was given a gift from the members of the freshman class, as was Assistant Dean W. M. Caskey from the same source. Bob Kellogg was awarded a trophy for the best all-around football player. Frances Smith, voted the best all-around freshman girl, was awarded a watch, while John Semago, voted the best all-around freshman boy, also received a watch. Dr. W. L. Bendel received a gift in recognition of his efforts in behalf of athletics of the college. Mildred Johnson, president of the freshman class, and Tom Jefferson, treasurer of the same class, also received presents for their efforts. Troy Hendricks was given a present for having made the highest scholastic record of any football player in the college. Kathleen Cox and Scherck Bogen, members of the executive staff of the Fox Wow, were each awarded presents for their excellent work on the college newspaper the past year.

Dean Caldwell presided at the exercises and Coach Jim Malone made the awards, aside from that of the Kiwanis club trophy.

Following the singing of their alma mater song, the faculty and members of the 1937 class filed out to the strains of a recessional played by the college orchestra.

Cotton Classification Act To Improve Grade Of Staple

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.—(Special)—The new cotton classification act recently passed by congress will be responsible for improving the grade of cotton, which has been steadily running down for the last 10 years, and will put an end to "hog-around" prices, experts in the department of agriculture believe.

Up to now, they explain, farmers have had little opportunity to find out exactly how good their cotton was and what they should get for it. If they put up high grade bales they were apt to get the same money for it as the man with very low grades, under the system of paying on the basis of the average quality.

Buyers and manufacturers, while having a price advantage in some cases, found it difficult to know what they were getting and found that the bales did not run evenly.

A farmer, under the new grading system, can tear off samples from each end of a bale, send it to the nearest federal station office on a special card provided for the purpose.

In a few days he will be notified of the exact grade and by watching prices and market factors (also provided for in the act) he can know when to sell and how much he should get for it.

That is, he can do this if he is in "any group of producers organized to improve the grade of cotton," the act reads. "The department takes this to mean the one-variety communities. This being the case, and with high grade cotton rewarded and low grade cotton penalized, officials expect a rush to organize more of these communities—and they have been seeking for more than a decade."

In a study of the influence of the act which was circulated through the department, A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, predicted that "the number of communities that will be so organized is bound to increase with the new impetus supplied by this new legislation."

Despite all the official and voluntary work done in the past to organize these communities, comparatively little has been accomplished. It is estimated that there are 500 such organizations producing about 4 percent of the cotton crop. Aside from this, little is known about the number or the results, except in Georgia, where the effort has met with most success.

There, an accurate check has been kept. Last year there were 128 one-variety communities in that state and 15,194 farmers. They got an average of 40 pounds of lint per acre more than yields of other varieties grown nearby, according to C. B. Boyle, principal agronomist, division of cotton and other fiber crops and cases of the bureau of plant industry.

The average premium was 100 points per pound. The value of the extra lint was $1,042,600, the premiums totaled $319,605 which made a total extra value for these farmers of $1,362,205 for 1936 alone. For the four years figures have been kept, this totaled up to $3,380,214.

Little is known of the results in other states, but the department estimates there are 31 of these one-variety communities in Texas, 14 in Arkansas, 12 in Oklahoma, 10 in Louisiana and 128 in Mississippi.

Now that there is more incentive to plant higher grade cotton, the department is going into the work of organizing these communities intensively in all of these states.

LOW-TEMP LATEST FEATURE BY NORGE

Passman Equipment Co., Announces Newest Refrigeration Principle

One of the most revolutionary improvements in automatic refrigeration since the introduction of the Rollator cold-making mechanism is contributed by the Norge division of the Borg-Warner corporation in its new Low-Temp Rollator refrigeration, according to a statement made by Otto Passman, president of the Passman Equipment company, St. John street, distributors in this territory of Norge products.

"Low-Temp really represents a combination of two great forward steps in perfected refrigeration," Mr. Passman declared. "First, it is conceded that standard electric refrigeration was a great improvement because of its ability to keep perishable foods under the critical temperature of 50 degrees, above which bacteria and mold multiply dangerously. It has been long known, however, that a constantly maintained temperature under 40 degrees would be much more suitable for preservation of prime freshness.

"What all industrial technicians have aspired to for years, Norge engineers have accomplished in Low-Temp with its constantly controlled temperatures under 40 degrees," Mr. Passman continued. "This is a truly tremendous improvement. The ice industry has constantly stressed the need for higher humidity in proper preservation of food and now in Low-Temp, Norge engineers have achieved higher humidity and less drying out of perishables than in any other method of refrigeration."

Mr. Passman declared that Norge Low-Temp is designed for those who desire even greater health protection, new richness of fresh, full-flavored foods, greater efficiency, economy and use value.

Passman Equipment company maintains a full line of Norge products which can be purchased on convenient terms.

COLONIAL PIECES DISPLAYED HERE

Williamsburg Galleries At Durrett's Attracts Many Visitors

The shades of those who once graciously presided over the beautiful homes of early America seem to fill the rooms and to make their presence felt in the lovely surroundings of the Williamsburg Galleries on the third floor of the Durrett Hardware and Furniture company, 117 St. John street. When the visitor to the galleries steps out of the elevator into the cool and quiet interior of the rooms which are exact replicas of early colonial settings, the bustle of the twentieth century is left behind and it takes only a little imagination to people the rooms through which he passes with the gallant gentlemen in lace and ruffles and the beautiful ladies in crinolines and silks who once lived their happy lives and identical surroundings two hundred years ago.

The Alice Page room offers a wealth of welcome. Most of the pieces in this room are named for men but you know by the "feel" that the pieces are those of lovely women.

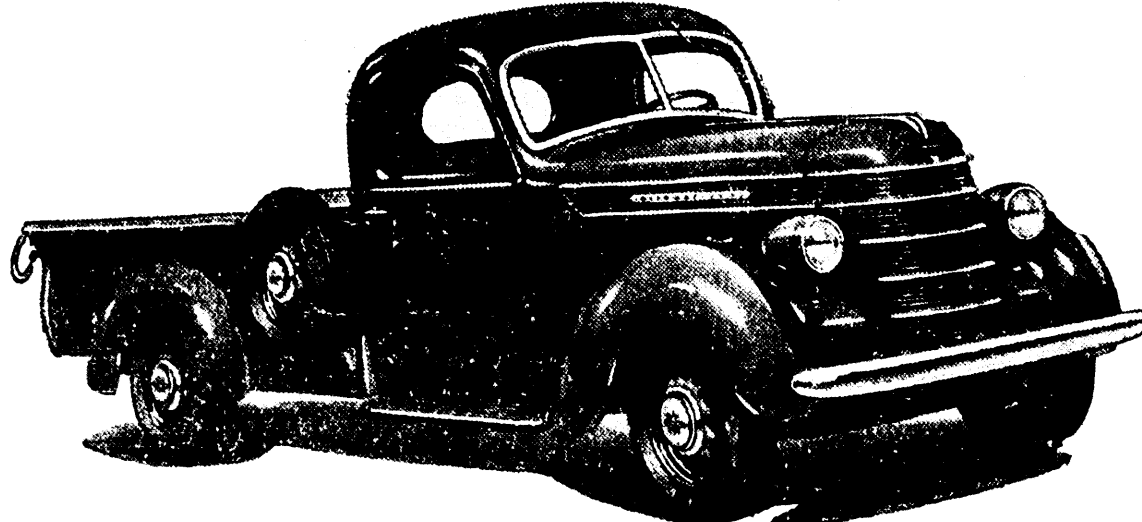

Alice Page, charming hostess and wife of Colonel John Page who was luxuriating his body in the big chair in the Dixon room is the vigorous girl in the middle of the room looking at the lovely gray bedstead, named after Sarah Barradall, the blue-eyed woman who is feeling its texture. She is the wife of Edward Barradall, the lawyer. Next to her is Elizabeth Randolph for whom that beautifully designed chair-back bed is named.

The gray-haired patriarch woman in the Spotswood wing chair is Susanna Archer. They say she had a sixth sense for passing on the social qualities.

Each room in Durrett's Williamsburg Galleries has its own charms, its own "ghosts," and the visitor will sense in the atmosphere of colonial times so exactly reproduced in each room.

All the pieces on display in the Williamsburg Galleries may be purchased through Durrett Hardware and Furniture company and will grace the room of any home where culture and good taste is cultivated.

NEW INTERNATIONAL HALF-TON MODEL PICK-UP TRUCK

Many different types of bodies may be mounted on the attractive International half-ton model D-2, available in two wheelbases, 113 and 125 inches. Shown here is the all-steel pick-up body. The lines of this graceful body blend with the graceful contours of grille, hood, cowl, and cab, forming a light-duty transportation unit of distinctive appearance, maximum utility, and advertising value. New International truck models include sizes and types to meet every practical need.

factions of women. The upholstery fabric on that chair carries her name. That graceful little night stand is called the Wetherburn and his name has also been given to the bench in front of the Bland dressing table and to that handsome five-drawer chest. Probably Henry Wetherburn had one like it in the Raleigh tavern.

The portable plate glass mirror on top of the chest is named after Anthony Hay, the man who bought the Raleigh tavern from Henry Wetherburn. Anthony was a cabinet maker and knew good furniture. If he is here looking over this furniture, he will be gratified that his standards of craftsmanship have been so well and conscientiously followed. The mirror with the engraved frame over the Bland dressing table is named for Redrick Bland.

Each room in Durrett's Williamsburg Galleries has its own charms, its own "ghosts," and the visitor will sense in the atmosphere of colonial times so exactly reproduced in each room.

MARKETS

COTTON
NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(P)—Cotton futures closed today and final prices were unchanged to 2 points lower.
Better foreign advices prompted a slight initial advance but some week-end realizing and liquidation wiped out the gain in the final trading and losing prices were at the lowest of the short session.
New York was closed and trading was at a standstill here throughout most of the session. There was a period of 32 minutes elapsing between the opening and the next sale. Better foreign markets was the only incentive apparent.
A bearish private crop report from Texas failed to shake the market out of its lethargy which has characterized trading all week.
Exports today were 3,257 bales.
Cotton futures closed steady, unchanged to 2 points down.

Neville Yearbook Reviews History Of Educational Institutions

The golden anniversary of the city school system is celebrated this year by Neville High school, which has produced a handsome annual done in gold covers in observance of the event.

Copies of the book, just off the press of the Monroe Printing company, were presented to members of the graduating class at the annual class night held at Neville High school Friday night.

The annual, which includes a wealth of half-tone engravings of school officials and students, is beautifully illustrated with pictures of Neville High, Central Grammar, Barkdull Faulk, Georgia Tucker, Lida Benton and Sherrouse schools, as well as the various activities that go into the school life of the city.

The book is the work of students who were under the direction of W. C. Spight, who has sponsored the production of the school's annuals for the past seven years.

A history of the city school system, showing its progress from early beginnings in 1830, a year after the formal change of the town's name from Miro to Monroe, contained the right to erect and operate schools but there is no indication that this right was exercised until 1877. Meanwhile, the first predecessor of the Monroe City High school, the Ouachita Female academy, situated on a corner of the square now occupied by the Central Grammar school, was incorporated by the state to serve as a Monroe school. The following seven trustees were named: R. F. McGuire, James W. Mason, Henry Bry, Solomon W. Downes, M. A. Hamblin, Ephraim K. Beard, John S. Lewis, Daniel A. Beard, Samuel Handy, James M. Brigham, Henry M. Bry, Oliver J. Morgan, John A. Morgan, Hardy Holmes, Henry C. Bartlett, John Williams, William Grant.

The school started operating in 1840

under the principalship of Rev. C. B. Hodges, rector of the Episcopal church of this city. A few years later he was succeeded by a Mrs. Thayer, who was in turn succeeded by Mr. Guillot. Under the terms of the act of incorporation $1,000 a year for a period of five years was provided for the academy on condition that instruction should be given to ten indigent children each year, the students to be named by the trustees.

Evidence that the municipality of Monroe failed to exercise any of its rights in providing for public school education until some time after the war between the states is indicated in the fact that the charter of 1839 makes no mention of public schools. Private institutions, such as the Ouachita Female academy, seem to have borne the responsibility of education.

City School System

It was early in 1880 that the Monroe authorities began a definite program for the establishment of a city school system. This program was initiated by the acquisition of the Ouachita Female academy with the school to operate under municipal auspices. In 1887 the school was formed, opened under city auspices. The academy's principal, Frederick W. Blees, was retained as the first head of the city school system. Professor Blees shortly afterward gave up his school work in Monroe to return to his native Germany to claim possession of a large fortune which he had inherited.

Professor Blees was succeeded by Harry Ransom who saw the first class graduate from the Monroe school. Ransom was succeeded by J. E. Keeny (later head of Louisiana industrial institute, now Polytechnic, at Ruston) who retained this position until his resignation six weeks before the end of the 1892-1893 term. Mr. McClintock was then made principal. C. E. Byrd, for whom Byrd High school in Shreveport is named, was Mr. Keeny's assistant for a year. The next principal that is recorded was W. C. Garrett, who afterwards married a sister of Miss Julia Wossman, principal of the Barkdull Faulk school.

In 1898 David B. Showalter was made superintendent of the city school with Professor E. M. Wallank as principal of the high school.

The City High school building was begun in 1899 under the administration of Mayor Foresythe. The corner stone of the building was laid January 15, 1900, with great ceremony. This school was used as a grammar school and a high school. The first session was opened in September, 1900.

The next year E. L. Neville was made principal of the school, succeeding E. M. Wallank. Mr. Neville has seen every class but one graduate from the present Monroe City High school.

Not until 1902 did the city acquire all of the square now occupied by the Central Grammar school. Previous to that time a portion of the property was occupied as a home by Father Ludovic Enaut, a Catholic priest. Father Enaut gave the land for the Saint Francis Sanitarium.

Prior to the erection of the Monroe City High school, the city operated a grammar school on North Third street, between Washington and Breard streets in the residence now owned by Mr. Sidney Stroud. The school was known as the "Gayle School" because the house was the original home of a family of that name.

In 1903 Professor Showalter was succeeded as superintendent by E. Irving Kearsing, who served one year. In the fall of 1904 George W. Reid became superintendent and continued in the office until 1909, when he was succeeded by the present superintendent, E. L. Neville, who had served as principal of the school since 1901.

Other Schools

With its continued growth the need of additional schools became evident, and in 1922 two grammar schools were added to the system. The Georgia Tucker school was erected on the north side on a block of land donated to the city by the late Colonel Frank P. Stubbs. The school is named in honor of Colonel Stubbs' mother, Miss Myrtle Rodgers has been principal of the Georgia Tucker school ever since it was established. The Barkdull Faulk school, on the south side of the city, is named for Leonidas Barkdull Faulk, a physician, native of Monroe, and graduate of the City High school, who lost his life at the second battle of the Somme in the World War. Miss Julia Wossman has been the only principal of the school.

Still farther south, on Lee avenue, is the Lida Benton school, named in honor of Miss Lida Saint Claire Benton who first taught in the city schools in 1899 and continued her activities as a teacher and school librarian until her retirement in 1930. This school was begun in 1927 with Miss Maude Moore as principal.

In 1930 the Sherrouse school was built in the extreme eastern portion of the city to accommodate children of families brought into the corporate limits by the annexation of the Sherrouse addition and adjacent sections. Mrs. W. S. Vincent is the principal.

A modern school for negro children was completed in 1922 on a location between Breard and Washington streets near Eleventh.

The capstone of the city school system is the magnificent high school, named in honor of Superintendent E. L. Neville, located in northern section of the city, opposite Forsythe park and occupying a site six city blocks long by three blocks wide. It is acknowledged as one of the most modern and completely equipped education institutions of its kind in the state. This school was opened in the fall of 1930 with Dr. C. E. Kenney as principal. Upon Mr. Kenney's resignation in the spring of 1936, Paul J. Neal became Mr. Neville's assistant as principal of the high school.

The city school system is the only Louisiana school system supported by a municipality with partial assistance from state funds. The city schools are operated under the supervision of the state board of education.

Throughout the history of the school, Monroe High school students have been noted for their athletic prowess as well as their fine scholarship, and have won many honors in that field.

Faulks And Flournoys In New England; Dryburghs Will Depart Soon For Mountains

By Eve Bradford

The lark's on the wing, the snail's on the thorn, God's in His heaven, all's right with the world.

Long roads are now winding deep into June and days of tranquillity are ahead for those who test the cool temperatures of the swimming pools, who golf in the early morning hours and sail down the river in the sunset's purple glow.

Such a lot of coming and going! "Va et vient" as the French say. The seemingly never-ending stream of seasonal travelers to interesting points continues with a vitality we haven't seen in years.

The E. N. Faulks and the Eugene Flournoys are motoring today along the stern and rock-bound coast of New England, headed for Boston and New York City and then home through the picturesque Shenandoah valley.

Eleanor Faulk's plans for a summer in Europe with her brother, Robert, who will arrive home early in June from Cornell university, will of necessity have to be changed unless there is a decided improvement in her condition—she is suffering from malarial fever.

The Arthur Dryburghs, with their daughter, Patsy, who is graduating this year from high school, will soon be off for the mountains and their old home in Chicago.

Frances McHenry is anticipating the time of her life in New York City during the summer with three lovely young things in tow—her daughter Cornelia, and her two nieces, Gloria Frances Major and Mary McHenry. Judge and Alice Dawkins are off today for their daughter Jane's graduation from Mary Baldwin. Jane will return with them but nevertheless they will be disconsolate as that lovely child, Peggy Prindle, will not be with them.

Peggy spends her winters with Ben and Alice but during the summer she belongs to her father, Harry Prindle, and her Grandmother Prindle. Each year Alice suffers agony for fear she will not return. And no wonder for Peggy grows lovelier and more desirable with the passing years and she is greatly devoted to Alice and Ben.

It's getting on toward the time when the flood of young graduates absorbs our attention. Either our own children or our friends' children deserve some sort of tribute for having passed their final examinations. If social affairs offer compensation then they are well repaid for their years of struggling toward that coveted diploma. Dances and breakfast parties, picnics and boating, banquets and what-not—all done in grand manner. Fluttering young things all done up in white mousseline found their places at long banquet tables on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel and the roof of the Virginia hotel where the festivities took place last week. Not all the smart guests were graduates, however. We saw Ellen Kent Millsaps in a gem of a dress—white mousseline striped with white taffeta worn with a short, flaring coat of taffeta. Katie Mae Thornhill was a stunning figure in a turquoise blue lace, floor length model with short coat and wide collar that framed her face. Mrs. George Moffett, gracious and friendly and beloved by everyone, was everywhere at once shaking hands and exchanging pleasantries. Not in years has there been such a mixture of young and old as was seen at the Ouchita Parish High school banquet last week. It was a veritable love feast with speech-making widespread and Professor T. O. Brown coming in for much adulation.

Brides-to-be are now wandering around in a rosy tinted pre-nuptial daze and with a subtle air of detachment from the commonplace things of life. Garbed in their devastating trousseau frocks they go from one affair to another drinking the perfect cup of tea, nibbling at delicate sandwiches from silver trays on lace covered tables. Perfection marks these joyful affairs honoring the June brides.

The gods must have had something to do with the al fresco affair hosted by Beatrice Thurmon, Louise Thompson and Ethel Amner last week when they entertained for Suzanne Hirsch. It was a barbecue staged in one of those tucked-away spots city folks dream about. Food for the gods was stacked on low tables and everywhere was heard the tinkle of ice cubes in tall frosted glasses. Even those who "live alone and like it" felt that they might as well be in a blissful state of solitude for the sake of having such a soiree planned for them.

Miss Bass Marries

W. H. Williams, Jr.

Grace Church At Lake Providence Scene Of Wedding
Uniting Two Prominent Families

The marriage of Miss Marguerite King Bass, of Lake Providence, to Mr. Wilson Hanson Williams, Jr., of Arcadia and Baton Rouge, Tuesday, May 25, at 11 o'clock in the morning at Grace Episcopal church, in Lake Providence, was an event of unusual interest.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. C. Bass and the late Sheriff John Cortez Bass. She was educated in the Lake Providence public school and Louisiana State university, where she received her B. S. degree in 1935. She is a member of Chi Omega sorority.

Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams of Arcadia, and was educated at Louisiana Polytechnic institute in Ruston and the Riverside Military academy in Georgia. He is in charge of the office of the state civil service commission in Baton Rouge.

The wedding was solemnized at Grace church, with the pastor, Rev. George A. A. Tocher, officiating in the presence of a host of relatives and friends of the young couple.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers in all the pastel shades. The altar was banked with white larkspur, Easter lilies and Queen Anne's lace, and flanked on either side by gleaming tapers in golden candelabra.

The bride wore a gray triple-sheer semi-sport model trimmed in Du-bonnet with accessories to match. She carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers.

Owing to the recent death of the bride's father, simplicity was observed in every detail.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Mark H. Brown, accompanied by Mrs. F. D. Adkisson at the organ, sang "At Dawn-ing." The bride entered the church on the arm of her cousin, Mr. Vail Delony, who gave her in marriage. Mrs. Adkisson played softly during the ceremony, after which Mrs. Brown sang "Oh Perfect Love."

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and bridegroom left for a honeymoon on the gulf coast, after which they will be at home in Baton Rouge.

Guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams, Sr., Dr. H. D. Shehee, Miss Sunshine Shehee and Mr. J. S. Williams, of Arcadia; Miss Mildred Williams, Miss L. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Williams and Mr. L. T. Lancaster, of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Williams of Natchitoches; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Easterling, Robert and Jack Easterling and Mrs. Mary Lee Saunders, of Monroe; Mrs. Davis Whitfield, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hester, Mr. and Mrs. George Webb and Mrs. T. A. Kell of Tallulah, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Bannerman of Baton Rouge, and Mr. and Mrs. Wile Webb of Yazoo City, Miss.

IDEAL FOR BEACH

A beach and play robe of heavy printed cotton that looks like linen crash is pale green with a white foliage design in which small red berries are scattered. The sleeves make shoulders look nice and square. The revers are rather small and rounded, and the skirt flares about the ankles.

Writer Praises

2 Noted Women

Two women, Anne Lindbergh and Willis Warfield, whose names are on the lips of every woman throughout the length and breadth of the whole world, were compared by Dunbar Bromley, New York feature writer, in a most interesting manner. She said:

"The news that Anne Lindbergh has borne her third son is like a clean fresh wind blowing across news pages that have been murky with infanticide and matricide charges, sex crimes, and the bombing of women and children in Spain. The news from the Lindberghs' retreat in England proves that there is still a little sanity left in this world where men and women bother their heads with titles, absurd questions of precedence, transference of a hundred crowns, and honeymoon yachting trips along a war-besattered coast."

"It is a truism that men and women cast very different things from life, some the glitter and others the more lasting values. Judging on this basis I should say that Anne Lindbergh and Willis Warfield have one thing in common, and that is that they both appear to know very definitely what they want."

"Since both have been favored by the gods with charm, personality and famous men for husbands, it would be an interesting if idle occupation to take a vote asking American women whether, if they had the chance, they would rather change places with Anne Lindbergh or the future Duchess of Windsor."

"So far as her own life goes, Anne Lindbergh has the breaker because all creative work is absorbing and creating human life is especially absorbing to an imaginative woman. But Anne Lindbergh does not stop with a mother's job. She has so much imagination and so indefatigable a sense of adventure that she covers the world with her husband on his flights at times when other women would be cooing themselves at home."

"It is this finding of a creative outlet which keeps women happy for long hours and days. Homer tells us that Helen of Troy found it in her looms after she had returned to Menelaus' bed and board. Mrs. Warfield, we are told, expresses her creative urge by designing her own gowns, and the has in the past been credited with a love for gardening and a flair for the culinary arts. Personally, I should prefer gardening and cooking to creating only my own clothes, which would come to be too narcissus-like an occupation."

School Graduation Exercises And Parties Claim Spotlight

Anniversary Observed By Neville's Students

'Class Night' Program And Dances Given As Annual Commencement Activities Get Under Way

High school diplomas, symbolic of passage over one of the most important thresholds of life, will be awarded young men and women when the Ouachita Parish High school, Neville High school and St. Matthews Parochial school hold their commencement exercises this week.

Events of outstanding interest, leading up to graduation, have been taking place for the past two weeks. Unusual interest centers in Neville High school activities, as this year witnesses the golden anniversary. The program revolves around the golden anniversary theme, climaxing in the presentation of an anniversary edition of the "Monroan" to each member of the senior class, Friday night.

"Class night" on the moon drenched campus of the Neville High school will linger in memory for all time to come. This event, staged out-of-doors on the terraced campus, featured an impressive program.

"All Hail Dear Neville High" the class song, resounded over the campus as class members marched to the accompaniment of the high school band.

The theme of the evening's program was the presentation of famous persons in the life and politics of today. After the procession of the senior class to the tiers of seats arranged on the terrace, and the overture by the band under the capable direction of Mr. Charles Gausshell, Miss Dorothy Carter, announcer, introduced the class officers who stepped from a replica of the pages of the golden anniversary edition of the Monroan, high school annual, as follows:

Prophet—Walter Winchell (Stanley) Mintz.

Historian—Archeologist Richard Haliburton (Robert) Stewart.

Poet—Edna St. Vincent Millay (Aline) Sager.

Lawyer—Homer S. Cummings (Mervin) Cannon.

Musicians—Jan Garber (J. H.) McClendon and Paul Whiteman (Bob) Gangstad.

Class president—F. Delano Roosevelt. First vice-president—Ma. Ferguson (Jane) McKenzie.

Second vice-president—Gov. of La., Richard Leche (J. H.) McClendon.

Secretary of labor—Frances Perkins (Nora) Abernathy.

Treasurer—Henry Morganthau (James) Digby.

Reporter—The only living woman to interview so many world figures for the press—Mr. Sinclair Lewis (Mary) Hayward.

President's cabinet and officers of the student council—

Speaker of the house—Bankhead (Slackman) Mark.

Senator Carter Glass (Cecil) Blanchard of Virginia.

Cabinet Minister—Ruth Bryan Owen (Estelle) Thames.

The pleasures of "Class Night" climaxed with a breakfast party at day-light with members of the annual staff and Mr. W. C. Spight, the genial hosts.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be given at the Grace Episcopal church today at 11 o'clock. Commencement exercises, the last in the series of events in the graduation program, will take place at the school auditorium at 8 o'clock Thursday night, June 3.

It is princess type, with softly draped lines, long sleeves and long train and a spray of orange blossoms fastened in unique manner from waistline straight up the front of the bodice and on one side of the V neckline. The bride's bonnet is made of sheer, transparent glass fabric and finished with a tulle veil. The maid-of-honor's dress is a picturesque affair of ciel blue organza, tucked deeply from shoulders to floor. At the edge of each tuck is a double row of narrow Val lace, dyed to match the organza.

Members of the auxiliary to the Ouachita Parish Medical association were hostesses on board the Weto Thursday afternoon complimentary to the graduate nurses of St. Francis sanitarium.

Landing was made at Pine Top, where tea was served under the giant trees surrounding the J. B. Cooley sanitarium. Charming informal was the hour spent in this quiet spot, one of the most picturesque along D'Arbonne.

Matthew Redmond, who has been attending Webb's school for boys, Belknap, Tenn., is listed in this year's graduation class of that institution. Upon his graduation he will return to Monroe to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Redmond, on Roselawn.

The guests upon arrival were served a barbecue luncheon at tables placed in the cool shadows where the fragrant south wind blew across the wide expanse of green meadowland and rippled the American flags flying gaily from trees and shrubs. The table, overlaid with colored linens, had for central ornamentation a luscious birthday cake with nine flaming tapers. It was cut by the young celebrant and served to the children with the "Mickey Mouse" ices.

A "balloon shower" was one of the highlights of the afternoon. Hundreds of them in all the rainbow colors came drifting down and were caught by eager, outstretched hands.

A PERFECTLY charming "lady" has arrived in town! Stopping at Walgreen's—fashioned in a most attractive package called... "DOROTHY GRAY"... Yes, Girl! The wonderful cosmetic that has done more for women than any famous designer ever did for them. Dorothy Gray cream is absorbed through the skin and gives it a fresh, alive look. It stimulates the tissues so that firmness is restored and wrinkled and flabby skin made smooth. Certain glands of the female body secrete substances called endocrines or hormones. It is these that keep the body young and vigorous. When we're "fortyish" the supply of these natural hormones is reduced and our skin becomes wrinkled and old looking. This cream, increasing artificially the depleted supply, does a lot toward making us look ten years younger than we really are. You can't pass up anything so marvellous as that, can you? Go to Walgreen's today or tomorrow and get acquainted with "Dorothy Gray." This store carries the complete line.

The pesky little moths are getting ready to deal you some misery... so now is the time to turn the trick... Gather up your garments... first thing tomorrow. Phone 103. Let the efficient representative explain this service to you.

One of the outstanding events of the past week honoring Miss Hirsch as the luncheon-queen at the home of Mrs. Edgar Masur with Mrs. Louis Masur as co-hostess.

A conversational hour upon arrival of the guests permitted the hostesses to serve refreshing iced aperitifs and delectable array of canapés.

Luncheon was served in the dining room, where the table, beautifully appointed with silver and crystal, was veiled with handsome point Venise. A beautiful Dresden epergne, overflowing with pink sweet peas and autumn pink roses, formed the central floral motif. At the four corners Dresden candlesticks supported pink tapers.

The four-course luncheon reflected the pink color theme in a most delightful manner.

Bride was introduced later in the dining room, where pink roses were

"Let joy be unconfined," is the slogan of this year's high school seniors who have been entertained in lavish manner for the past two weeks.

A dancing floor of huge dimensions was built for this occasion with a five-piece orchestra supplying the music.

A barbecue supper was served earlier in the evening at long tables placed along the margin of the bayou. Hosts on this occasion were members of the Neville High School commercial club, parents of the senior class members and Mr. Pritchard.

Choudrant P.-T. A. Conducts Round-Up

CHoudrant, La., May 29.—(Special)—The Choudrant High school P.-T. A. held its annual pre-school clinic Wednesday morning under the supervision of Dr. A. H. Allen, parish health director, and Mrs. Jones, parish nurse.

The clinic was in conjunction with P.-T. A. efforts to have all children who expect to enter school this fall get the benefit of these examinations. C. L. Madden, principal of the school, who is chairman of the round-up committee, expressed himself as being well pleased with the clinic, as about 30 children were examined and only in a few cases were minor ailments found, and parents seemed eager to remedy these as quickly as possible.

Plans Announced For Miss Doris Beaman's Marriage On June Twenty-Second

Wedding To Be Held On Roof Of Hotel Virginia

Miss Kathryn White, Mrs. Fay Hillard, Mrs. Vernon LaCour Among The Attendants

It is natural that every bride-to-be should dream of a perfect wedding day and of herself in traditional white satin surrounded by beautiful little flower girls and a bevy of lovely bridesmaids in beguiling frocks.

Miss Doris Beaman's dream will come true on June 22 when she walks down a flower-strewn, candlelit aisle on the Virginia hotel roof with Miss Kathryn White as maid of honor, her sister, Mrs. Fay Hillard, the matron of honor, and Mrs. Vernon LaCour, Mrs. Eldredge Carroll, Miss Joy Steele and Miss Mary Lee Wilson of Lacombe, Ky., the bridesmaids. Miss Beaman's cousins, Rosanne Reid and Charles Reid, Jr., will serve as junior bridesmaid and ring bearer. Billie Harper, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Harper, will serve as flower girl.

The pre-nuptial music will be rendered by Miss Carolyn Stubbs, pianist, and Miss Nellie Breard, vocalist.

Miss Beaman will be given in marriage by her father, Mr. Roy Beaman. The bridegroom, Dr. Luther Vaughan, and his attendants, including Dr. Oswald Cosby who will serve as best man, will wear white linens, de rigueur of southern summertime weddings.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception will be held on the roof. The announcement of Miss Beaman's engagement last month was the signal for considerable pre-nuptial entertaining leading up to her wedding day. Events of exceeding beauty, informal and otherwise, are now crowding the social calendar.

AWNINGS for Air Conditioning

Windows admit four times as much heat as the walls of the house. Awnings keep out half of this heat. Heat kept out of the house by awnings does not need conditioning.

Awnings in connection with either refrigeration or forced draft air conditioning permit a smaller unit and a lowered cost in operation.

Awnings on a house without air condition lower the heat 10 to 12 degrees by permitting ventilation and the shading of the window glass. Awnings keep out the rain permitting the windows to be left opened. Any shade being inside does not keep out heat.

In order to get the full benefit from your awnings they should be properly designed. We can do that. The comfort from awnings offsets the cost the first year. Awnings usually last four years or more.

MORTGAGES MAY BE OBTAINED ON RURAL PROPERTY

New Regulations Of FHA Do Not Insist On Urban Locations

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Revised regulations of the Federal Housing Administration now make it possible to obtain insurance on mortgages made on residential properties located in other than urban areas. It applies particularly to low-priced houses.

The 63 insuring offices of the housing administration have been informed of this change and have been told that the administration is as much concerned with small borrowers as it is with those in higher brackets.

In notifying the field offices it was pointed out that property standards requirements do not exclude construction of low-cost homes because of lack of existing facilities when they are not required, lack of special lighting facilities such as electricity, or lack of municipal water or sewerage disposal systems under certain conditions. Acceptance of drawings, it was stated, will be made in the simplest form which will permit processing, and no undue demands will be imposed upon borrowers.

Thus it is no longer necessary that the mortgaged property be located within the corporate limits of any town or village.

Musician Turns Old Ice House Into Bedrooms

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, has found a use for the old ice house on the Connecticut farm he purchased a few years ago. Ingenuity and a small expenditure have created a charming guest house in this outbuilding.

Although the former ice house is only 20 by 30 feet, it houses five guest rooms, two bathrooms, and a community living room. The rooms are small, accommodating a bed, chair, and built-in dresser-desk. Wooden doors have been put across corners to form closets. The decorative note is simple and gay. Everything in the place serves a useful purpose. Modernization credit funds obtained from a private financial institution and insured by the Federal Housing Administration may be used to create guest quarters on your property.

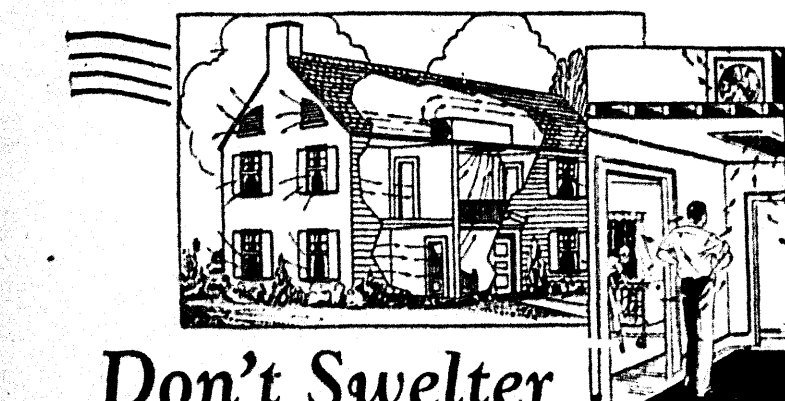

BATHROOM AID
A wooden strip three or four inches wide set about four feet from the floor and running around all four walls of the bathroom makes a convenient base on which to screw towel bars, tumbler holders, etc.

F.H.A. MORTGAGES CLASSIFIED BY DURATION

DISTRIBUTION OF MORTGAGES ACCEPTED FOR INSURANCE

The above chart, prepared by the Federal Housing Administration's Division of Economics and Statistics, is self-explanatory. It will be noted that, while 54.1 per cent of all mortgages accepted for insurance are for the longer terms of from 17 to 20 years, 73.1 per cent of all new construction mortgages are for this period. The following table, including business done through June 1936, gives other percentages.

TERM OF MORTGAGE	PERCENTAGE DISTRIBUTION OF ACCEPTED MORTGAGES

Many Factors Figure In Planning Character, Quality Of New Floor

When it comes to deciding what to do about wood floors in a new house, there are several things that must be considered: first, shall they be single or double floors? Second, what kind of wood shall be used for the finish floor? And third, how shall they be finished?

In deciding the first question, the fact that double floors have a three-fold purpose must be borne in mind. Put on diagonally they act as a structural brace to the whole frame. They add sound-deadening and they keep down dust penetration. So if the budget permits, double floors should be included all through. If economies must be made, omit the subfloor on the second floor, for if the house has a cellar, considerable dust will penetrate to the first floor if only a single floor is installed; and if there is no cellar, then the subfloor is needed as insulation. In fact, in this case an insulation board may be used as a subfloor.

If the floors are to be covered with linoleum or carpet or some other covering, a flat-grained soft-wood floor may be used. If not, it is better to use either an edge-grained wood or one made of the hardwoods, as the flat grain may raise and splinter. These come in varying degrees of cost, and the better grades are well worth the difference if the budget allows the expenditure.

As for finish, a waxed surface is wanted in most cases. Just what sort of base should be laid for the wax is a matter of opinion. Except with flat-grained wood a filler should be used first. With this filler there should be a degree of stain to darken the floor. The amount of the darkening is a matter of taste, but floors should not be left entirely unstained, as dark ones set off the rugs and give greater depth to the room and are altogether preferable. Over this may be spread a coat or two of shellac, with the wax as a final coat. The objection to this is that if the wax wears off and is

Formula Given For Whitewash By Government

Whitewash on brick, stone, or concrete walls is coming more and more into favor. A good mixture used by the United States government on its lighthouses follows:

Sloke 40 pounds of quicklime with boiling water, keeping it covered. Strain, and add a pack of salt dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste, one-half pound of powdered Spanish whiting, one pound of clear glue dissolved in warm water. Mix well and let stand for several days. Use as hot as possible. Fifty-two pounds of hydrated lime can be used in place of the quicklime.

EMPLOYMENT PROP

Impetus to the recovery movement is being supplied on an accelerated scale by the capital trades, according to W. Ian Mack, New York World Telegram financial writer. Mr. Mack points out that the capital trades discarded their depression lethargy in the final six months of 1935 and today the majority of employment generally. Mr. Mack quotes figures showing gains by various industries gathered by the department of labor's bureau of labor statistics. Agricultural implements headed the list with a gain of 63.8 per cent; machine tools are second with 52.5 per cent gain; and iron and steel third with a .81 per cent gain. Other substantial gains are plumbers' supplies, 42.2 per cent; lumber and millwork, 41.9 per cent; aircraft, 36.8 per cent; cast-iron pipe, 33.6 per cent; and refining copper, lead, and zinc with a 32.3 per cent gain.

MORE GAINS

Building activity in the Chicago suburban area during March was the greatest for any month since July 1931, according to a survey covering 54 communities and conducted by the Chicago Tribune. The value of March permits totaled $2,737,621, compared with $1,067,550 for March, 1935, a gain, the Tribune reports, of 156 per cent.

IMPROVED ROD

A 3-4 inch galvanized pipe set in wooden brackets makes a very satisfactory clothes rod. It is strong, does not bend, and is small enough in diameter to take any sized coat-hanger.

ACOUSTICS OF N. Y. BUILDING UNUSUAL

Planetarium Example Of What May Be Accomplished To Gain Quiet

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Owners of theaters and public halls, and governing bodies of colleges, schools, and churches may profit from the development of the acoustically perfect Hayden Planetarium of Natural History—sometimes called the quietest building in the world.

Acoustically, the construction of this large domed structure presents one of the most difficult problems which engineers have faced. It was desired that visitors to the planetarium should not feel the presence of walls or ceiling and should be able to imagine themselves out in the open air with only the sky overhead. Therefore, all echo, reverberation, and other forms of noise had to be eliminated.

The attainment of this aim through scientific construction and application of a sound-deadening material illustrates what science can do in controlling noise. The usual problems of sound control in theaters, auditoriums, restaurants, and the like are much more simple but are subject to the same treatment.

Not only does the material used act as an acoustical treatment but it also has the qualities which are necessary to maintain the constant temperature of the conditioned air and to prevent condensation of vapor in the structure. An outer surface of concrete covers the shell of the dome, while suspended beneath the insulator is a thin, perforated steel sheath which allows noise to pass through it and yet provides a suitable protection.

Acoustical treatment in all types of commercial buildings is eligible for loans made by private lending institutions operating under the newly extended Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Proper Lighting Convenient For Reading In Bed

The doctors say that reading in bed is bad for the eyes, but it will take more than that to break most people of the habit. So if reading is to be done in bed, it might as well be made as convenient as possible. Where possible, a set of built-in book shelves should be placed near the bed. This can frequently be done by recessing the bed and putting the shelves on either side of the recess.

Then proper light should be provided. If the reading is done merely as a sedative to induce slumber, by a small concentrated light that will shine on the printed page but leave the rest of the room in darkness. If the reading is to be really serious, then some general illumination will help to keep the eye-ids open.

Built-in shelves and lighting systems can be financed under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration. Furnishing and movable equipment must be financed in other ways.

CONCRETE HAS MANY USES IN CONSTRUCTION

The advantages of concrete and its ever-increasing uses for construction purposes is being constantly demonstrated.

Combined with strength and durability it has flexibility in use and application. The addition of color to cement broadens its field and adds greatly to its decorative possibilities. The federal housing administration insures mortgages made on homes by private financial institutions.

INSULATION ADDS TO COMFORT OF THE HOME

Adequate insulation adds greatly to the comfort of a home. When properly installed, it retards heat and cold, reduces heating cost, protects health, and promotes economy.

Special attention is given to this important matter in the homes financed under the insured mortgage plan of the federal housing administration.

MODEL HOME CONTEST

TOLEDO, Ohio.—The local chapter of the American Institute of Architects is sponsoring a model-home contest among high school students. Plans drawn by members of the chapter will be submitted to the students, who will make model houses. These houses will be displayed in the architects' booth at the National Home show, a committee from the chapter will select the winning model.

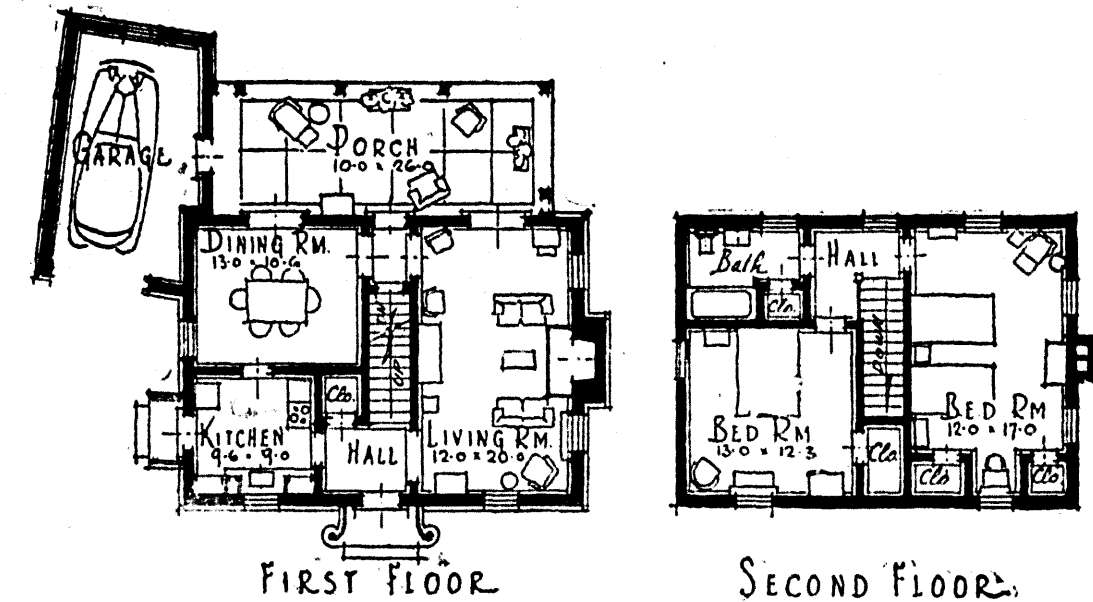

FOR HOT AND COLD

On a lavatory, a mixing faucet is much more convenient than separate hot-and-cold-water faucets. Most people like to mix their hands under running water, but with two separate faucets the water may be too hot or too cold. Under a mixing faucet it can be made "just right."

FORGING AHEAD

New construction in Wilmington, Del., during March showed a 90 per cent gain over February and a 105 per cent gain over February, 1935, according to the Journal-Evening of Wilmington. Estimated valuation of new construction totaled $1,431,846.

Clever Use of Small Area

The home shown here was designed by Vincent D. Grontzenberg, architect, and was built at Chery Chase, Md., under terms of the Federal Housing Administration's Single Mortgage System. The house is of Georgian style and has brick and tile exterior walls with a fire-resistant shingle roof. The general appearance of dignity to this small house takes it out of the cottage class without making it seem overly pretentious. While it conforms to the traditions of its type, it also serves modern purposes admirably. The plan embodies in a small area all the elements of a complete home. A central, boxed-in stair makes small hall spaces possible and leaves all the exterior walls for rooms. Every room has cross ventilation except the bath. The living room is well proportioned and what traffic must pass through it does not interfere with furniture arrangement or social grouping. The porch is secluded and can be used both as a living porch and dining porch. The garage, set slightly at an angle, is an ingenious idea and serves the practical purpose of allowing the driveway to clear the kitchen porch without any abrupt curves. Second-floor arrangement provides adequate accommodations for a family of four.

Grace church. The Christian year some one has said, is divided between creed and decalogue. The first half of the year is devoted primarily to doctrine; and the second half is devoted to duty, as seen in direct relation to doctrine. In the seasons that succeed Advent, until Trinity Sunday, we perceive a sort of spiritual impulse. But now we have reached a season in which our spiritual joys must be those of faith and duty; and in which physical, as well as spiritual efforts must be made if we would keep our souls alive and growing. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH

Vernon C. Grosse, Pastor
Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a. m. Church service at 10:45 a. m. The Epistle lesson for the first Sunday in Trinity is found in I John. 4:16-21. The first words of this portion of Holy Scriptures are also its keynote. We may say that they give us the Christian definition of God. Yet, they are more than a definition; they are the result of Christian experience and that experience is the result of God's revelation itself. If we consider those words in the light of Christian experience, we shall realize that they are also the keynote of a Christian life. We shall understand what it means for a Christian to confess, God is Love. You are cordially invited to worship with us at all services.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And then shall that wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." (II Thess. 2). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Its basis being a belief and this belief animal, in Science animal magnetism, mesmerism, or hypnotism is a mere negation, possessing neither intelligence, power nor reality." (p. 102).

CHAPTER XLIII

Mrs. Pettingill thought she would just run over and see how those Morrell children were getting along, now that their mother and father were away. Wasn't it just wonderful the way Harvey Morell had recovered after that terrible accident? It would have been a great loss to the family and he had had a close call, a very close call indeed, said Mrs. Pettingill, sighing and wiping her eyes. Well, the Lord had been good to them; and now Harvey and Louise had gone off to the mountains and there was Gypsy looking rather peaked (but that was to be expected; that big child of hers was quite a care), over in the house, looking after the twins, with Clytie's help.

It was a hot day. Hot and still, with big, fat, fleecy clouds sailing in a high blue sky. But not hot enough to deter Mrs. Pettingill from making a pie before she put on a fresh lavender dimity and brushed her iron gray hair into its customary neat waves. She knew Bertram and Beatrice loved pie.

The baby was parked in his carriage in the side yard under the big black blot of shade thrown by the old sugar maple. A glare of sunshine lay all over the rest of the place and most of the shades in the house were drawn, too. Well, bless his heart, said Mrs. Pettingill, smiling and clucking at the sweet lamb. Did he love his old Auntie Pettingill and was he a love of a child? He was!

Nobody seemed to be about, so Mrs. Pettingill went up on the porch and rang the bell. Through the screen door she could see approvingly that everything was in good order.

Clytie came rumbling through from the kitchen regions after a moment's wait. She showed her teeth and said Miss Gypsy was lying down and she'd just call her.

"She not well?" Mrs. Pettingill wanted to know.

"Oh, she's just a mite peaked," Clytie told her. "She not feeling so awful good this afternoon. Guess maybe it's the heat."

"They both nodded solemnly over this. This heat was enough to lay anybody low—except, of course, themselves. Whatever the weather, Clytie scrubbed and baked and roasted; Mrs. Pettingill did the same, varying the routine with trips to the Ladies Aid and missionary suppers on the church lawn. It wasn't to be expected that young folks would have their stamina.

Clytie refrained from expressing her own private opinion that Miss Gypsy had something on her mind, that she was fussing to herself about something. She had said, on arriving,

DO YOU REALIZE
WHAT IT MEANS TO KEEP YOUR

To illustrate, take the printing business of Monroe. There are over 25 (actual survey) business men, large and small, who send out of town more or less for their printing. If the purchase of each one would average $20.00 per year, which is a very conservative estimate, it would amount to $500.00 sent out of town to enrich some other community. Suppose, on the other hand, this $500.00 was kept here in MONROE and circulated in the ordinary channels of trade; it would change hands or pay bills at least three times each week, or 156 times a year. In other words, it would circulate and pay bills to the amount of $780,000.00 each year. If this amount is multiplied by the many other lines of business that are sent out of town, we have a sum that is staggering. DO YOU BUY EVERYTHING YOU CAN IN MONROE? Don't you think, Mr. Merchant and Mr. Business Man, it would pay you to do so? Surely with three quarter million dollars changing hands here in Monroe every year, some of them would find their way into your till!

AGAIN we say, THINK IT OVER.

that Mr. Weaver was out of town on business. But Clytie didn't take too much stock in this, since she knew the ways of men. Although she would say for Miss Tom he seemed a very nice gentleman and always had.

Mrs. Pettingill sat in one of the wicker chairs on the porch, fanning herself, and after a bit Gypsy appeared in a filmy pink frock Mrs. Pettingill didn't remember having seen before.

"Why, child, you're right thin!" she said before she had thought twice about it. She was sorry the minute the words popped out because it wasn't tactful. Gypsy was more than thin. She was hollow-eyed. She looked as if she'd had sleepless nights. Why, land's sakes, Mrs. Pettingill murmured inwardly, she looks as though she'd been pulled through a knot-hole. . . .

They chatted for a while but, in spite of her most valiant efforts, Mrs. Pettingill discovered the conversation was flagging. Gypsy seemed utterly dispirited. The only time she brightened at all was when the visitor spoke of her father's recovery.

"That's it," Mrs. Pettingill told herself as she went down the steps. "She took his illness too much to heart. She's fagged out. Why, that child's not well!"

After she had left Gypsy sat for a long time, relaxed in the low chair, staring at the pattern the maple branches threw across the porch. Clytie came out after a bit and plumped up pillows and wanted to know if Gypsy would like a glass of milk. Gypsy said listlessly that she thought not; when it got cooler she was going to walk down the street with David to the drugstore.

She didn't acknowledge, even to herself, what she wanted to do there. She could see, in her mind's eye, the little telephone booth at the end of the shop, hidden by the jutting cosmetic counter and the lending library shelves. She wanted to call a certain downtown number. . . . At home someone would be sure to hear.

It was 10 days now since Tom's tall figure had flung itself out of the apartment door. Ten aching, dreadful days. At first she had been angry, resentful, bitter; now she only knew that all she wanted in the world was the sight of him, the sound of his deep, pleasant voice and the touch of his hand on hers. What had they quarreled about? What did it all mean? Why, there was nothing in the whole world so important as their life together. To throw it away like this, without a look behind, without a gesture of regret—it was unthinkable.

And yesterday, to crown her trouble, Derek, who had been drifting toward the dark shadows ever since that night of the fall, had died. Some enterprising and suspicious reporter had caught wind of the true state of affairs. The morning's newspaper had carried a story full of veiled insinuations. Gypsy's name had not been mentioned but it was only a question of time, she thought drearily, before the whole, miserable story would come out. Then Sue would know where Hunt had been that night. Sue, whose fragile, dawning happiness in Hunt's new devotion was a lovely thing to watch!

His husband called her the meanest woman in the world, Lila Grey Chaplin Aguirre told the judge from the witness stand in Los Angeles, where she is pictured above. "Are you?" asked the judge, and denied the divorce, declaring the marriage had not had a "fair trial." The former wife of film comedian Charlie Chaplin and mother of his two children married Aguirre December 10, 1936.

When first she had read of Derek's death, Gypsy's heart had ached and tears had fallen. The affair seemed pitiable beyond belief and tragically sad. But now she had come to see that perhaps Derek, in leaving life, had justified himself. He had refused to make a compromise. He had loved Lila truly and deeply. Whether she would be able to build a new happiness on the ashes of his dead love remained to be seen.

"What a punishment or her," Gypsy had murmured in pity. She had forgotten her own trouble, considering this. And she had wept in the night, longing for Tom to talk to, to comfort her.

Hunt had stopped for a moment the night before. He had said, in a low tone, "Rotten luck for him! Rotten luck for us all!"

Gypsy looked at him quickly and proudly. "You can deny you were there if your name comes into it. No one need know. . . ."

He had the grace to be ashamed. "What about you?"

She had shrugged her shoulders. "It doesn't matter about me."

Plainly he didn't want Sue to know he had attended Lila's fateful party, no matter how innocent his part in the night's affairs might have been. Sue had confided to Gypsy only Monday that Hunt was his old, sweet self to her these days.

"I think something happened—he's utterly changed," Sue had said softly. "He says he never knew anyone so—so untouchable, and incorruptible as I am. Did you ever?" And Sue's sweet laughter had rung out. Gypsy's lips had twisted themselves into a smile, but the implied comparison had stabbed her. Hunt playing around with a gay crowd, had liked it all well enough until danger threatened. Now he had rushed to the safety and innocence of Sue's single-minded devotion.

"But he'll be a very good husband for her," Gypsy thought wistfully. She wouldn't be calling Tom today, she told herself proudly, if it weren't for this complication caused by Derek's death. Why, only an hour ago a tabloid reporter had telephoned and asked her all sorts of questions. What was she to do or say? She needed Tom's advice, his help.

She halted for an irresolute moment at the drug store and then went on. No, she would not call Tom; better still, she would send him a telegram. "Need your advice something important let me hear from you." She signed it "Gypsy."

She waited until night in a fever of impatience. Well, the answer would come in the morning, she told herself. Every car along the street, every boy on a bicycle, brought her heart into her mouth.

Meantime, in town, a tall blond young man carrying a briefcase rushed into a glassed-in compartment. The neat secretary at the desk looked up. "Oh, Mr. Weaver. We didn't expect you back until tomorrow."

"I know. I cut it short. Finished earlier than I had expected. Any messages?"

She gave him a neat heap of mail and he ran over it quickly. "No telephone messages, I mean?" "I haven't taken any. Miss Gray has been using your desk. . . ."

"Ah!" The secretary looked up quickly. The monosyllable had a decided sound of annoyance. Already he was out of the door, sprinting down the length of the office. She saw him bending over Vera Gray's desk, in dumb show saw the colloquy. The blond waved head above the blue frock was shaken in a negative gesture.

The neat secretary was interested. She didn't like Miss Gray. That girl was a caution; she seemed so sweet, but you had a feeling she was one of the sly ones. "She likes him a little bit too well, if you ask me," murmured the secretary who hadn't been asked but who saw everything that went on in the place. Well, it wasn't any of her business. But wasn't there a telegram that had been lying around yesterday afternoon? Oh, well, Miss Gray must have opened it. It was probably something about one of the accounts. Those space buyers were tight. "I'd better keep my foot out of it," the secretary said to herself. She was a philosophical soul. She went out to lunch without mentioning that telegram to anyone.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

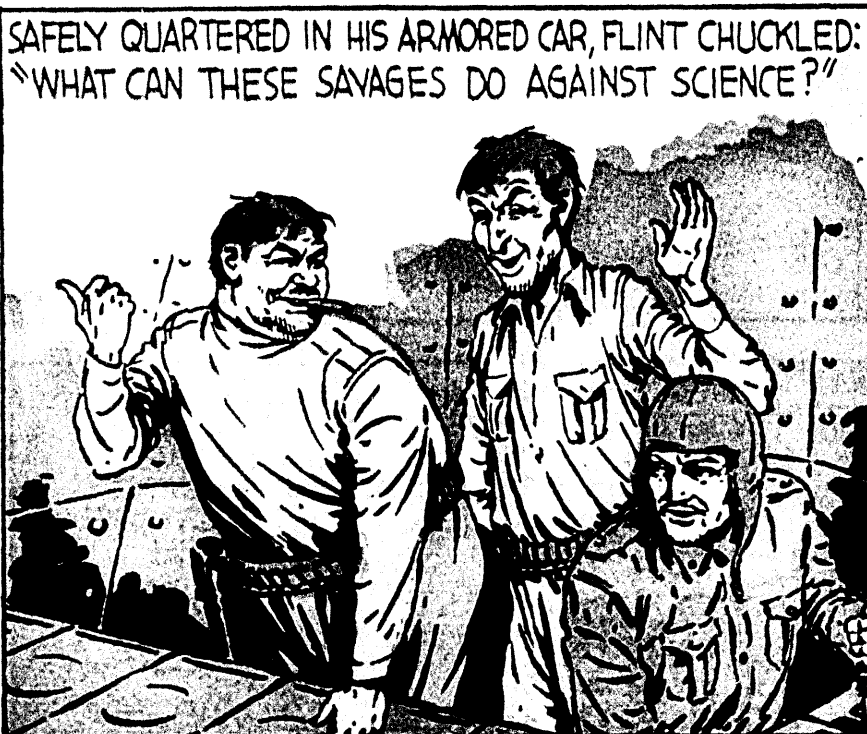

Published by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

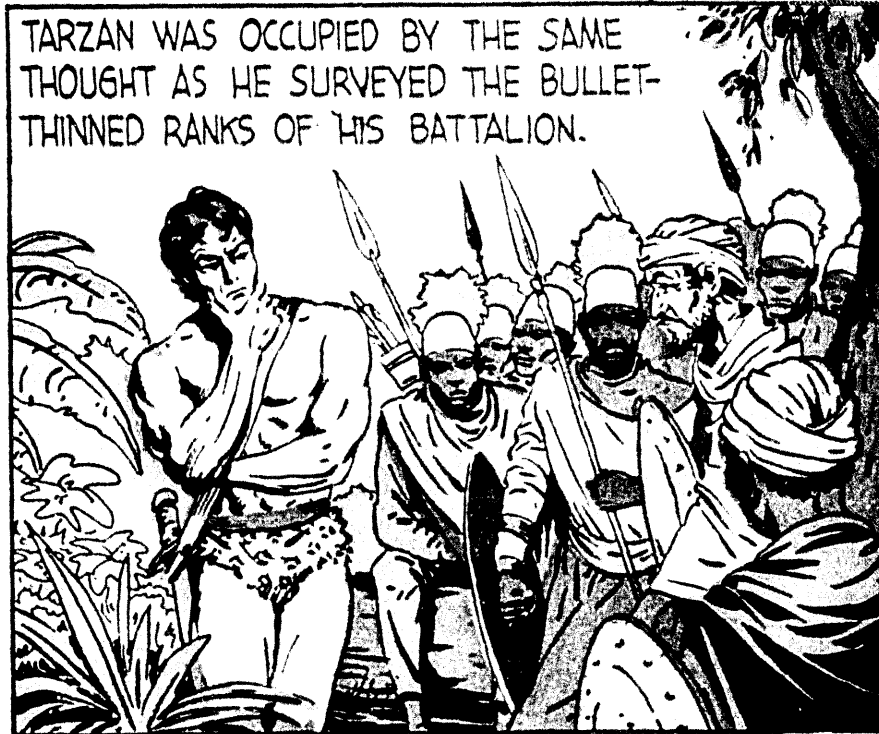

THE FIGHTING APE

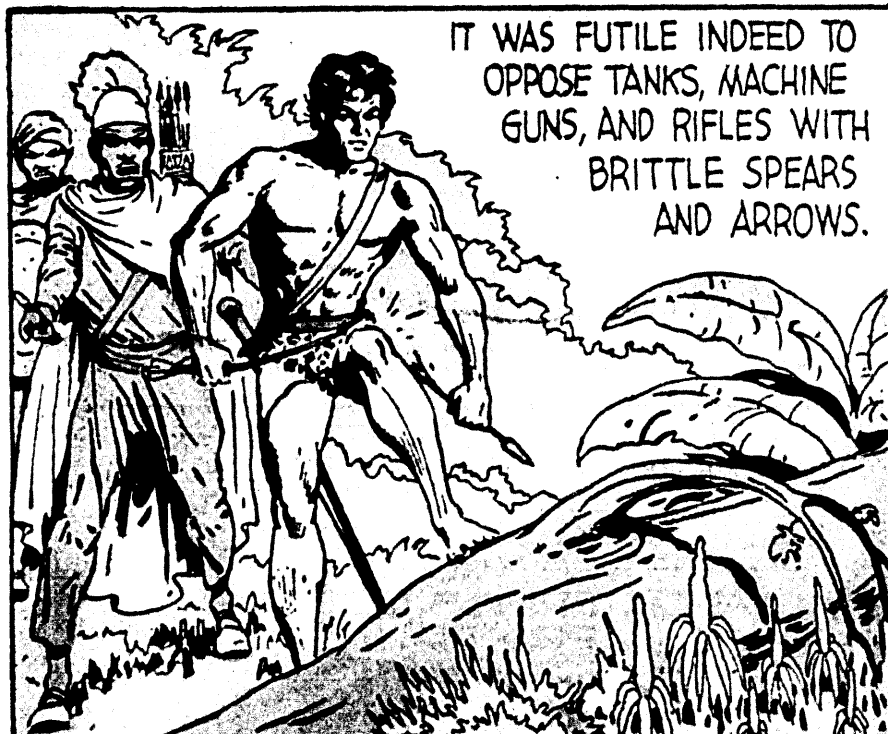

THE INVADING COLUMN PUSHED STEADILY, RELENTLESSLY TOWARD THE GOLDEN CITY.

SAFELY QUARTERED IN HIS ARMORED CAR, FLINT CHUCKLED: "WHAT CAN THESE SAVAGES DO AGAINST SCIENCE?"

TARZAN WAS OCCUPIED BY THE SAME THOUGHT AS HE SURVEYED THE BULLET-THINNED RANKS OF HIS BATTALION.

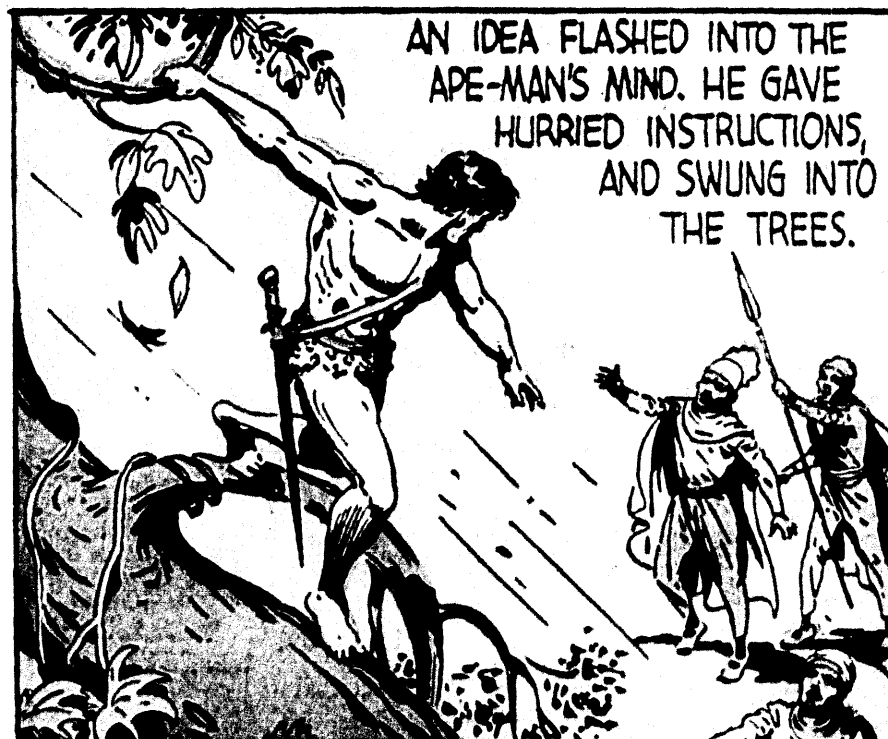

IT WAS FUTILE INDEED TO OPPOSE TANKS, MACHINE GUNS, AND RIFLES WITH BRITTLE SPEARS AND ARROWS.

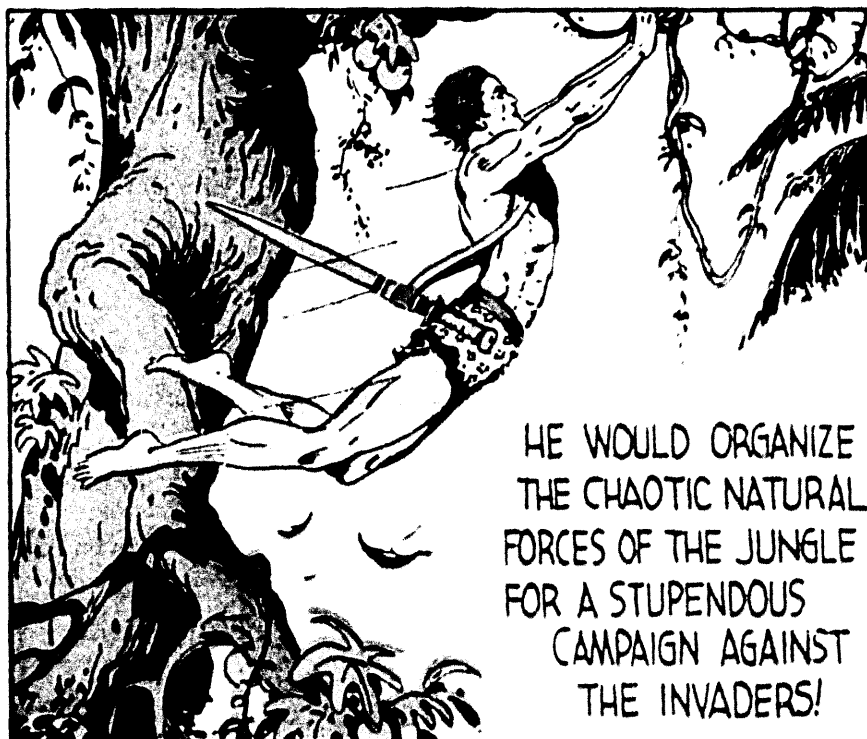

SUDDENLY THE SKIES FILLED WITH CLOUDS AND A LIGHT RAIN FELL. THE TAANORIANS CRIED OUT HAPPILY.

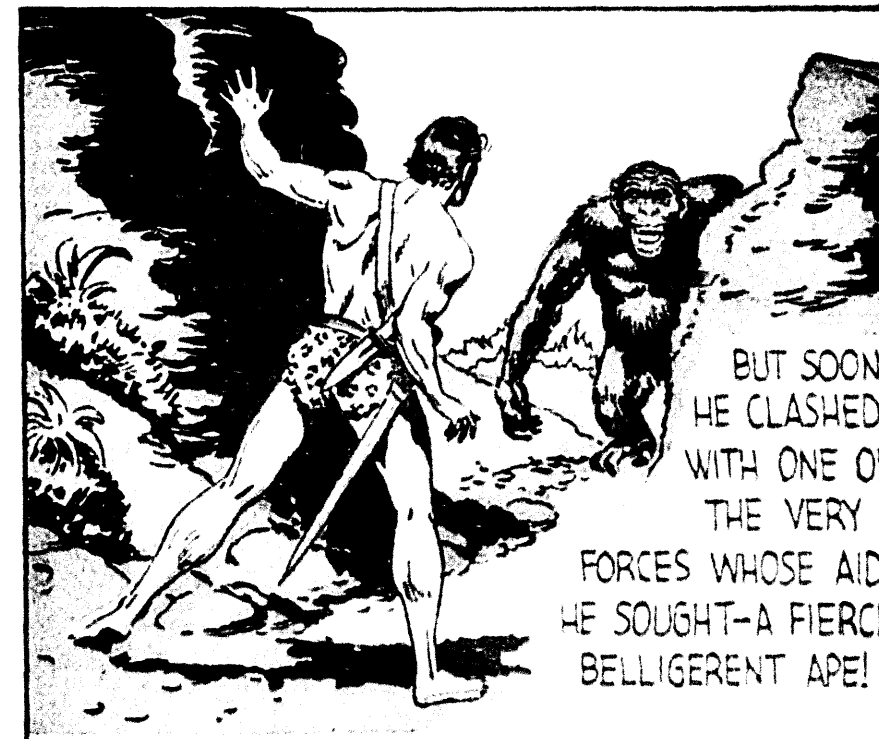

"SOON WILL COME THE BIG RAINS. OUR FOE WILL BE STUCK FAST IN THE MUD. ONLY TARZAN CAN TRAVEL THEN."

AN IDEA FLASHED INTO THE APE-MAN'S MIND. HE GAVE HURRIED INSTRUCTIONS, AND SWUNG INTO THE TREES.

HE WOULD ORGANIZE THE CHAOTIC NATURAL FORCES OF THE JUNGLE FOR A STUPENDOUS CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE INVADERS!

BUT SOON HE CLASHED WITH ONE OF THE VERY FORCES WHOSE AID HE SOUGHT-A FIERCE BELLIGERENT APE!

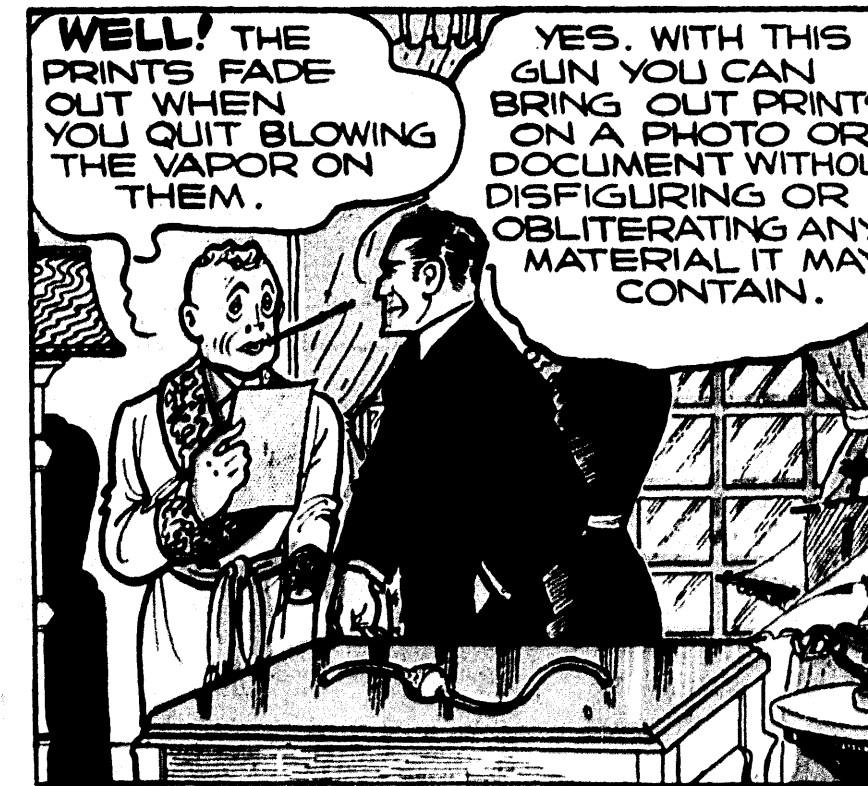

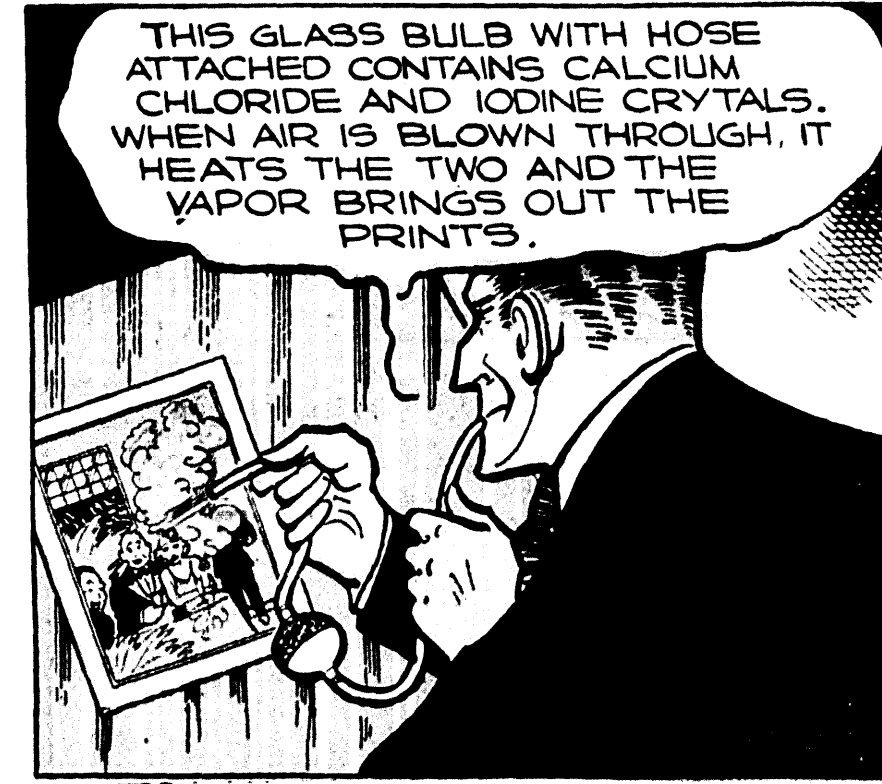

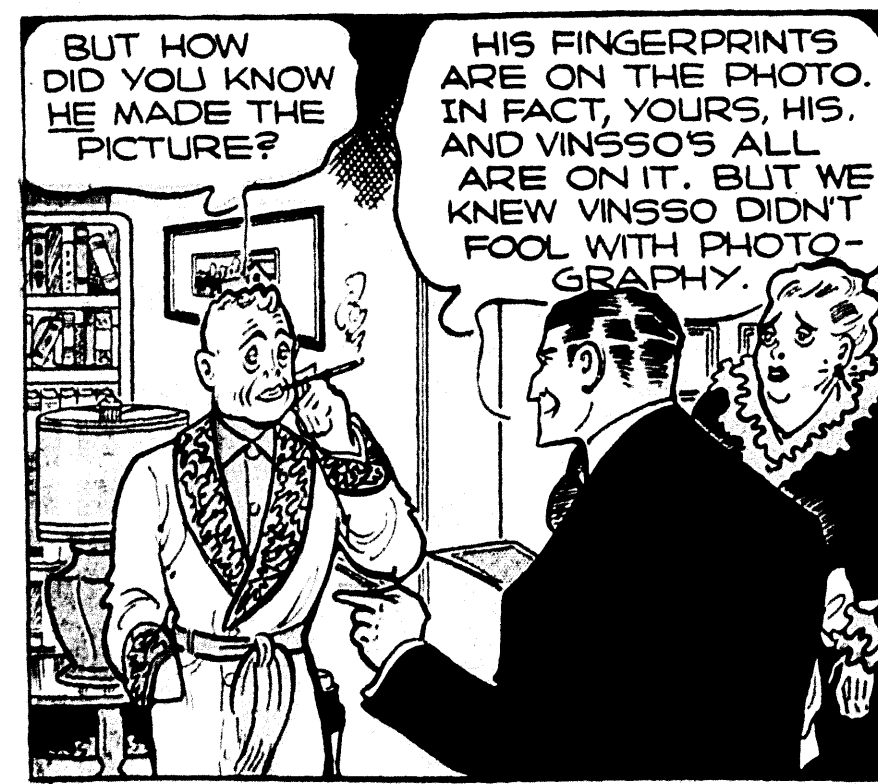

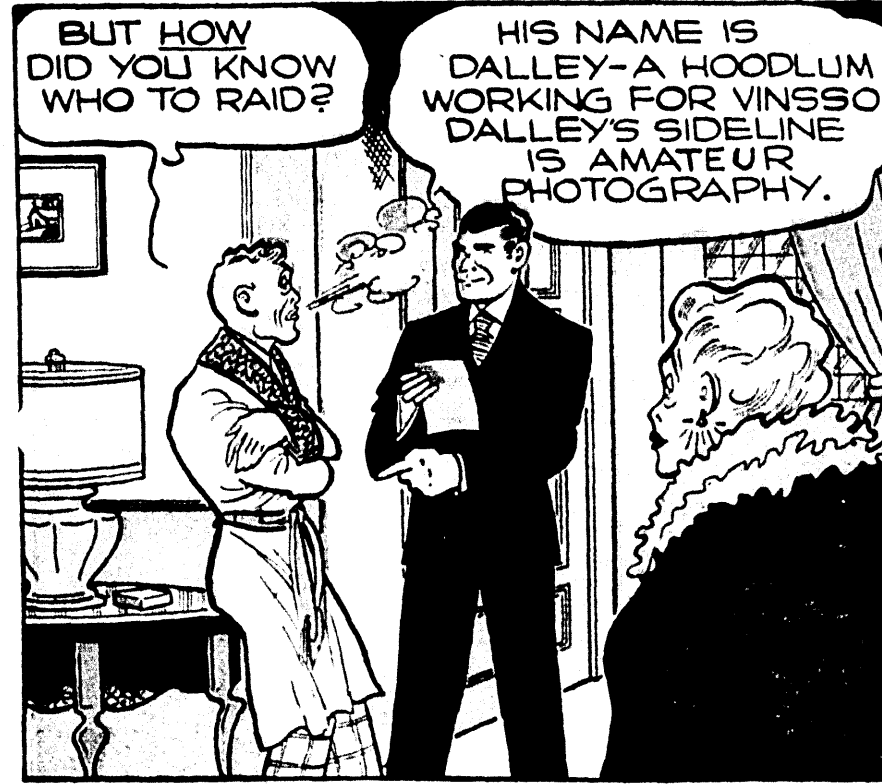

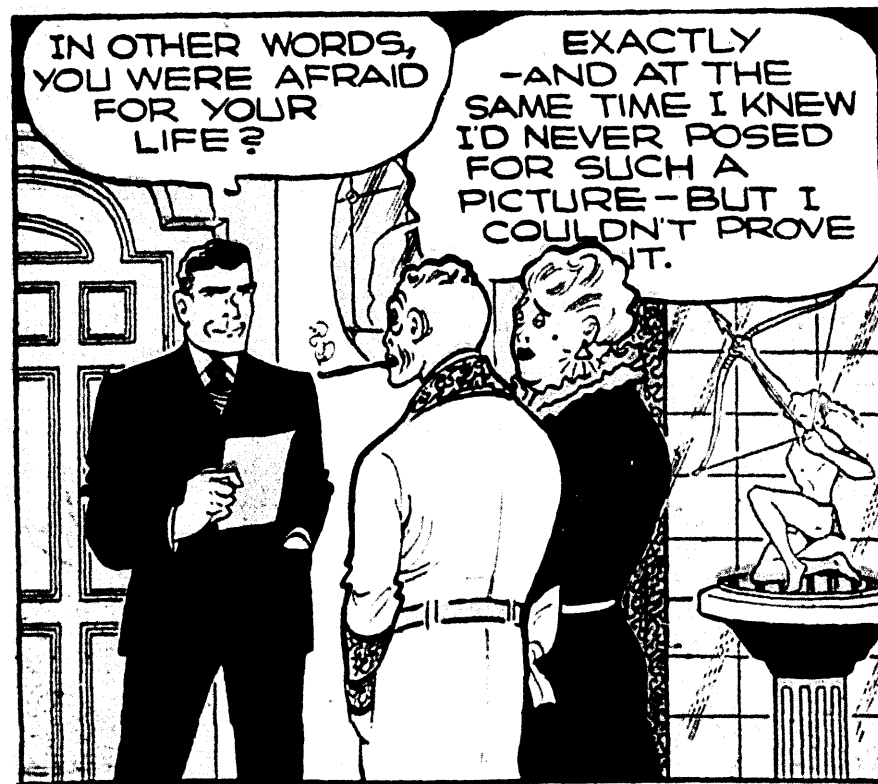

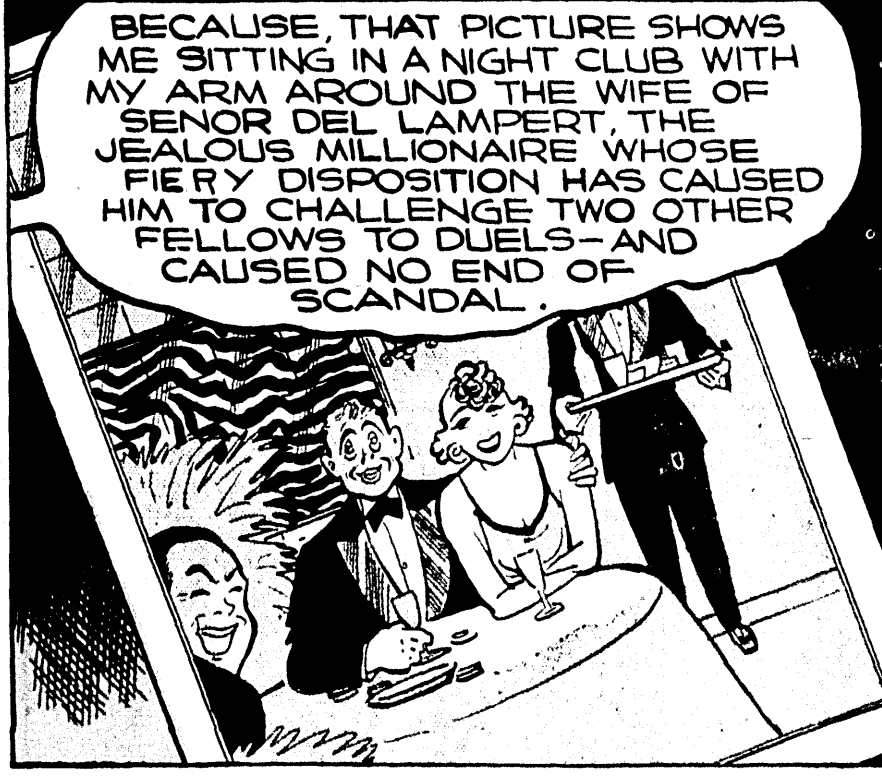

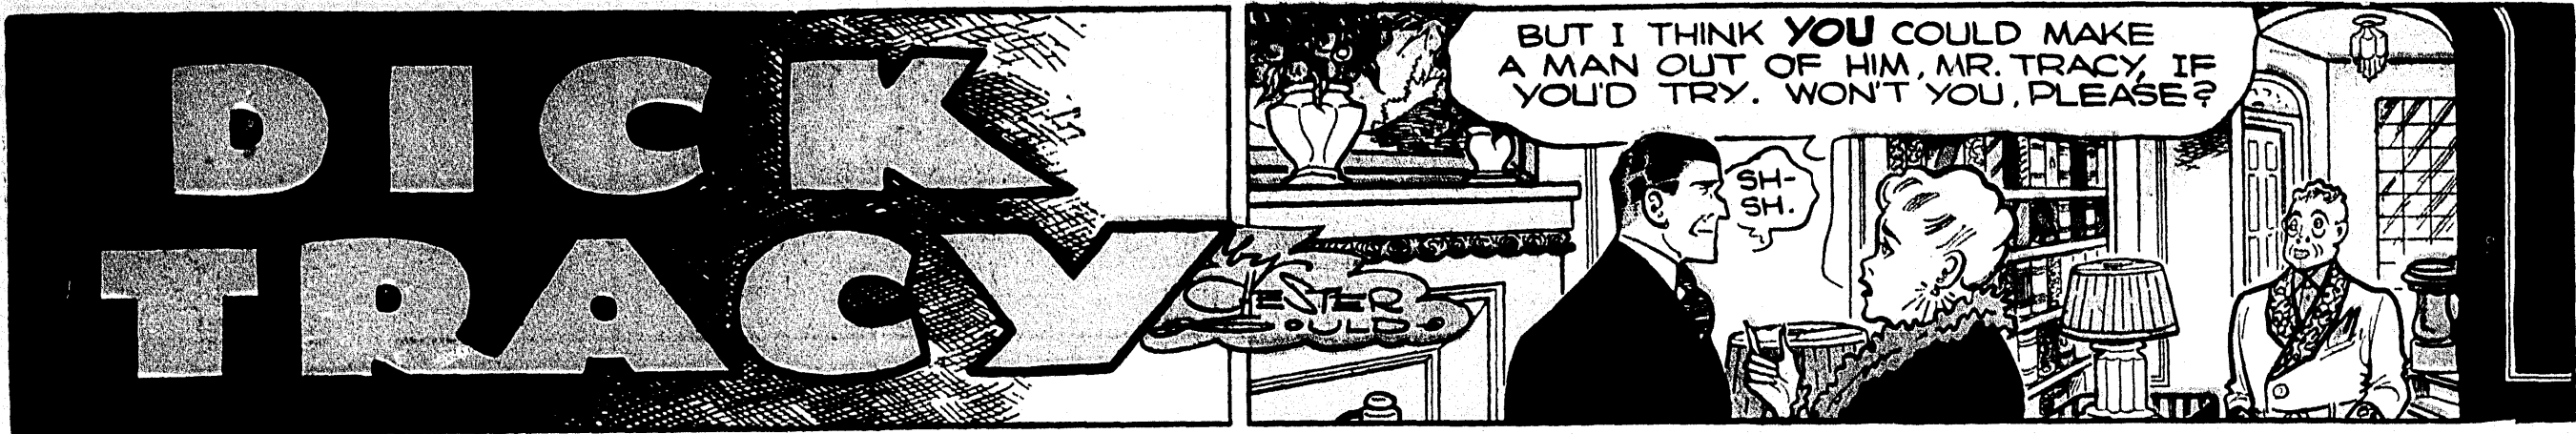

"KREEGAH!" TARZAN CRIED. THE MASSIVE ANTHROPOID GAVE NO HEED TO HIS WARNING.

"I KILL!" THE GREAT BEAST GROWLED, AND HURLED HIMSELF AT THE MAN-THING. AND FROM THE MOUNTAIN-SIDE THE WHOLE APE TRIBE POURED DOWN TO ENGULF THE STRANGER!

DEATH OF THE MAD CZAR

5-30

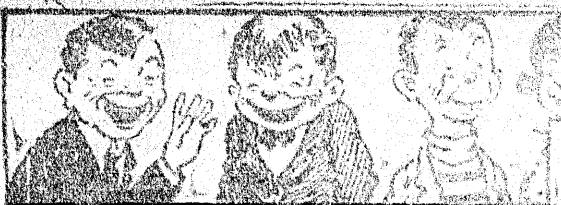

COPYRIGHT 1937 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

FOR four years, from the death of Catherine the Great in 1796, Russia was held in fear and turmoil under the arrogant and cruel rule of Paul I, her son. Thrust suddenly into supreme command, the ugly, grumpy ruler acted the madman in his lust for more power. Even before the great Catherine died, he was believed bordering on insanity. Now, court officials thought he really had gone mad. His order against the wearing of round hats, his raising of a court barber to a high trusted position, summary demotion of army officers, all strengthened the belief in his madness. Early in 1801, a number of courtiers, led by Count Pahlen, decided to replace Paul with his son, Alexander.

One day in March, Pahlen deceived Paul into believing his immediate family was conspiring to murder him. Paul signed an order for their arrest, and that night, while Czarévitch Alexander, his brother, the Grand Duke Constantine, and Empress Maria were safely under guard, the conspirators entered the palace. They forced their way into the czar's room. Awakened by the clamor, Paul jumped out of bed and tried to flee. He was caught and asked to sign an act of abdication. He refused and seized his sword. An officer grappled with him, and he was strangled to death. Paul's portrait appears on one of the stamps Russia issued in 1913 on the centenary of the Romanoff dynasty.
